5,700 Miners Leave Jobs As Government-Union Talks Open In Washington

LEWIS, KRUG ARE ABSENT

Leaders Miss First Session Of Secret Negotiations On Coal Problem

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Wildcat strikes pinched soft coal production today as government officials kept a cloak of secrecy around the status of their contract negotiations with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers (AFL).

Reports received by the solid fuels administration showed approximately 5,700 miners had struck yesterday because of misunderstandings over the status of their present contract.

SFA announced that soft coal production took another drop last week. Production this year through last Saturday is now seven per cent below the comparable period in 1945. Anthracite production, however is almost nine per cent higher.

With the negotiations in recess until Monday, there still was no official admission that the government had agreed to reopen the contract which has been in effect since the bituminous mines were seized last May.

Evidence, however, tended to confirm earlier reports that the administration was willing to reopen the contract. Lewis had said the agreement would be void if the government refused.

When invited to yesterday's meeting with federal mine administration officials, Lewis notified Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug that he took the invitation to mean the government was willing to reopen. Apparently neither Krug nor other officials told the union anything to cause Lewis to change his opinion.

Lewis had told Krug that the contract would remain in force during contract negotiations. The strikes yesterday were attributed to unrest over the status of the agreement.

The SFA reports showed 42 mines closed in Tennessee, Kentucky and West Virginia for that reason. However, the agency expected the men to be back at work Monday.

JAPS ARE TOLD THEIR FUTURE IS UP TO THEM

TOKYO, Nov. 2—George Acheson, Jr., American member of the Allied council for Japan, told the Japanese people today that the future of the Japanese democracy, based on the new "no war" constitution, depends upon them and their leaders.

Acheson issued a formal statement on the eve of promulgation of the new charter, in which the Japanese government renounces the right to make war. He outlined Japan's progress toward democracy under the occupation command by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"The Japanese people have learned that the past betrayed them and that their hopes lie in a new kind of future," he said. "The framework for democracy erected by the new constitution is the gateway to that future."

"In the final analysis, the Japanese people must make their own way along the road from defeat to democracy. The future democracy of Japan now rests squarely on the shoulders of the Japanese people and their leaders."

"Their achievements toward full success will be in the interests of the world at large as well as their own interests. I am confident the Japanese people may look hopefully to a democratic future."

CHINESE BANKS BUSY

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2—China's astronomical inflation was reflected today in Shanghai bank clearance reports for September showing a total figure of 5,265 billion Chinese dollars. The average daily clearance was $210,000,000,000.

BRITISH CLAIM 'TERRORISM' IN BULGARIA VOTE

Spokesman Says Bulgarian Militia Scared Voters Before Reds Won

LONDON, Nov. 2—A foreign office spokesman charged today that "severe terrorism" during the Bulgarian election campaign "no doubt strongly influenced the result" of the Communist-won balloting last Sunday.

In a lengthy commentary based on British observer's reports, the foreign office spokesman charged that Bulgarian militia participated in terrorism directed against opposition parties.

He said there was a "marked falling off of terrorism during election day," and the opposition, "while doubtless influenced by fear of reprisals and by uncertainty as to whether the vote was in fact secret, appears to have been generally free to cast their votes."

The spokesman said that while the opposition was permitted to conduct a number of campaign meetings without interruption, there were "measures of terrorism used, particularly in the provinces to prevent their meetings."

"Instances were reported," he said, "of organized bands of government supporters breaking up opposition meetings. There were numerous examples of setting up road blocks by militiamen and toughs to prevent opposition supporters from reaching their meetings."

A British member of the Allied control commission for Bulgaria was held up at one such road block, the spokesman said. He said a British representative had come into possession of a permit to buy woolen underwear "which was given to an elector by a government candidate."

CHINESE PLAN COUNCIL CHANGE

Nationalists Said Ready To Let Communists Have Share In Setup

NANKING, Nov. 2—A top Nationalist negotiator announced today, according to unconfirmed Chinese press reports, that the government has agreed to reorganize the state council on an all-party coalition basis, presumably making way for some Communist members.

The negotiator, Shao Li-Tze, was quoted as saying the government also plans to reorganize the executive yuan after the national assembly convenes Nov. 12.

(The newspaper Ta Kung Pao reported that the government had cabled Gen. Chang Chun, now visiting in Canada after an operation in the United States, to hasten back to China. Chang, now governor of Szechuen province, was president of the executive yuan before the Sino-Japanese war.)

Shao reportedly made his announcements after a meeting with Chiang Kai-Shek. Also present at the conference were Dr. Sun Fo, Wu Te-Chen and other top government negotiators. The group drew up the government's reply to a third party proposal for direct peace negotiations between the Nationalists and the Communists.

ONLY 3 ABSENT SOLDIER BALLOTS RECEIVED HERE

Only 3 absent soldiers' ballots have been returned to the Pickaway County Board of Elections up to Saturday noon and board officials said that only 4 such ballots were issued for Tuesday's election.

Under Ohio election regulations the ballots are returnable up to noon on election day. In the November, 1944, election, it was stated, 744 absent soldiers' ballots were mailed out and approximately 500 were voted and returned to the board.

BABY ARRIVES BEFORE MOTHER

WILLIAM WAYNE RAMSEY, pictured in the arms of a San Mateo, Cal., hospital nurse, has the distinction of arriving at the hospital, at the tender age of five minutes, ahead of his mother. The baby was born in the back seat of his father's car, which at that point was trapped in traffic. Arriving at the hospital the father, shown above, honked the car horn for help, and his wife handed the baby, her sixth child, out the car door to an attendant. Not realizing the infant had just been born, the attendant allowed Mrs. Ramsey to remain in the car until someone asked who the child's mother was. (International)

Russians Are Preparing New Trusteeship Plan

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 2—A proposal empowering any of the big five nations to veto United Nations draft trusteeship agreements is being prepared for the UN general assembly's trusteeship committee by Soviet Russia, it was learned today.

The Soviet action, certain to have wide repercussions in the 51-nation committee, may get American approval—or acquiescence. But some members of the United States delegation were said to firmly oppose the Russian move.

They were represented as eager to fight it on the ground that Russia would be given too strong a voice in the future of Pacific islands wrested from Japan by American forces.

Meanwhile, Poland pushed for a showdown in the new UN drive to crush Generalissimo Francisco Franco's dictatorship. Polish foreign Minister Wincenty Rzymowski submitted to the assembly two draft resolutions calling for a general break in diplomatic relations with Franco and the barring of Spain from membership in any organizations related to the world organization.

These battle-flags were raised over two explosive issues as the assembly's big political and security committee gathered for its first meeting here today to consider a controversy-studded calendar of 11 items. They included not only the Franco issue, but the

SUMMER MAKES BELATED STAND IN THIS AREA

Summer staged a comeback Saturday in the Circleville area and the weatherman said the balmy temperatures would continue Saturday night with Sunday mostly cloudy followed by occasional rain and turning cooler by night.

The thermometer registered 66 degrees at 9 p. m. Saturday and the mercury had climbed to 70 by 10:30 a. m. As a consequence many residents discarded coats and cloaks. Some pondered the advisability of putting their heavier wraps back in the mothballs.

Saturday was the warmest Nov. 2 within the memory of many older residents of the community. However, came the warning from the weather forecaster that Old Man Winter is just around the corner waiting for an opportunity to make a sudden and chilly entry upon the weather stage.

ROOSEVELTS TO RUSSIA

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—Elliott Roosevelt and his wife, actress Faye Emerson, will leave for Russia today by plane for a six-week tour to gather material for magazine articles, it was announced by Duell, Sloan and Pearce, publishers of Roosevelt's book, "As He Saw It."

COTTON RULES RELAXED SOME Democrats Making Late Bid For Voters' Support

Administration Hopes That Dropping Of OPA Order Will Solve Trouble

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—The administration watched hopefully today to see if its action in junking one of OPA's textile pricing regulations will bolster the erratic cotton market.

The regulation, which cotton state congressmen contended discouraged textile manufacturers from building up cotton inventories, was scrapped at the direct order of Reconstruction Director John R. Steelman.

Some OPA officials were openly skeptical that the action would do any good. They said the real reason manufacturers aren't buying is that they're afraid they'll be "caught" with a lot of high-priced cotton.

The agriculture department, meanwhile, predicted that October, 1946, will be remembered as a "black month" in the history of American cotton. It said there have been few times when prices dropped so much so quickly.

At the same time, OPA released a report showing that the price of cotton goods climbed 21.7 per cent between last June 29 and Oct. 19 while woolen and worsted prices increased only 1.6 per cent and rayon did not increase at all.

The price of other textile products increased 13.9 per cent during the same period. Cotton prices outpaced those of other textiles because of an escalator clause in the price law which links cotton textile prices to raw cotton prices.

In a letter to Price Chief Paul Porter, Steelman said his action stemmed directly from the recent market breaks which sent cotton prices plummeting down $50 a bale in less than two weeks.

BRITISH PAPER SAYS U. S. HAS 96 ATOM BOMBS

LONDON, Nov. 2—The Daily Express published a story today stating that the United States has 96 atom bombs and can produce six a month in a plant at Hanford, Wash.

The story gave no specific source for its statements, but said the details had been stated authoritatively.

According to the Express story, the atom bomb weighs 9,000 pounds is about 25 feet long and has two parachutes attached. The B-29 carrying an atom bomb must have its two bomb bays linked together, the newspaper said.

The two B-29s bombs reduced the stockpile from a maximum 98 to 96, the Express said.

Time was running out on the 1946 campaign today as Democrats put on a final flurry of speech-making in their drive to retain control of congress.

With next Tuesday's vital elections only three days away, the Republicans were silent, their campaign about over.

Democratic leaders of both the house and senate took speakers' stand, House Speaker Sam Rayburn at a Democratic rally, and Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley in a radio speech.

Rayburn, speaking at President Truman's home town, Independence, Mo., said the election of a

PORTER'S PLACE IS NEW TOPIC

Steelman Has Assumed Most Of OPA Chief's Duties In Decontrol Work

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—OPA Chief Paul A. Porter's future place in the Washington official family was a moot topic today as it became apparent that the OPA's decontrol program is being directed by Reconstruction Director John R. Steelman, not Porter.

Whether he cares to remain at the OPA helm under these circumstances, Porter himself declined to say. Those close to him said he'll "probably see the OPA fight through." But OPA officials say the fight is already over.

With more than 40 per cent of the economy decontrolled, and with wholesale decontrol orders coming out almost daily, they admit OPA already, is setting up plans for liquidation in the belief that congress will complete the job of putting it out of business when it convenes in January.

Last night, for the second time in two days, Steelman overruled Porter on decontrol policy when he wiped out an OPA textile order said by southern congressmen to (Continued on Page Two)

SUSAN HAYWARD, FAMILY HOUSE SHORTAGE VICTIMS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2—Actress Susan Hayward, fire in her Irish eyes, declared today that she, her husband and their twin sons would stay in their two hotel rooms until they could find a landlord who does not demand a "black market rental."

Miss Hayward, actor Jess Barker, and 18-month-old Timothy and Gregory were evicted yesterday for the fourth time in less than two years.

Republican congress would "divide" the government, hampering the United States in all fields.

Barkley rang in the foreign policy issue, heretofore virtually untouched by either party. He said the Republican party is "shot through with the old isolationist virus" and that the present bipartisan foreign policy would not survive under a GOP congress.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak in behalf of democratic candidates in a radio speech (ABC). She is being sponsored by the Democratic national committee.

President Truman arrived at Independence, where he will vote on Tuesday. The President held to his plan not to make any political speeches, refusing even to make platform comments during brief train stops at three Missouri cities.

Both CIO President Philip Murray and AFL President William Green had last minute instructions for their union members.

Speaking from Pittsburgh over the ABC and NBC networks, Murray called on labor to defeat "reactionary" candidates and elect friends of the workingman.

Green, in a letter to state and local AFL affiliates, wrote, "vote against those who are against you and vote for those who will stand by you."

Attorney General Tom Clark warned that ballot-box stuffing in congressional contests is a federal offense. He conceded, however, that the federal government is powerless to prevent frauds involving local or state candidates.

HUNT GOES ON FOR LOOT TAKEN BY NEW YORKER

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—The hunt continued today for the bulk of the near million-dollar loot which W. Arthur Nickel, a $60-a-week cashier who employed a $50-a-week gardener, allegedly embezzled from the Mergenthaler Linotype company.

"We expect to find the money in a lot of places," McDonald said. He indicated that Nickel's wife was giving information. Police recovered $83,100 cash and furs and jewelry worth $35,000 yesterday with Mrs. Nickel's help.

Two New York detectives went to Miami Beach, Fla., last night to pick up the 40-year-old Nickel, who was arrested there Thursday night. Miami Beach police said Nickel has agreed to waive extradition.

Estimates of Nickel's loot, the bulk of which still is missing, varied from $650,000 to nearly $1,000,000. Detectives who arrested Nickel accused him of stealing $600,000 and he politely informed them that the "correct figure is $750,000."

NEIGHBORS ASK FOR SHARE IN GERMAN TALKS

Netherlands, Luxembourg, Belgium Demand Part In Framing Treaty

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—The big four foreign ministers, gathering here today on the eve of their council meeting next week, faced a revolt by Germany's small western neighbors against exclusive big four framing of the German peace treaty even in its preliminary stages.

The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—each of which desires rectification of its border with Germany—delivered their demarches to United States, Great Britain, Soviet Russia and France two days before the council of foreign ministers convenes Monday at the Waldorf Astoria hotel. The big four meets to try to write final treaties for Hitler's satellites and then begin preliminary discussions on Germany.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin arrive here today.

Bevin is aboard the S. S. Aquitania, scheduled to dock late today, along with the big four deputies who have been working on the draft satellite treaties and the suggested amendments ever since the Paris peace conference ended Oct. 15.

Visages will fly here from Washington late today to confer with his deputy, James Clement Dunn, and probably to have advance talks with Bevin and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Molotov has been here since the opening of the United Nations assembly.

The fourth member of the big four—French Premier Georges Bidault—will not be here for the opening of the big four talks. He will be represented by his assistant in the quai d'orsay, Couve de Murville, until after the French elections Nov. 10.

But Bidault will be here in time for the subject in which he has greatest interest—Germany. The big four will not begin to talk about that No. 1 problem until about Nov. 20.

The Dutch-Belgian-Luxembourg challenge of big four domination of the treaty with Germany came as a surprise late yesterday in Washington when the diplomatic representatives of those countries personally handed their joint note (Continued on Page Two)

LAW OFFICIALS SILENT ON PLAN OF CHURCHMEN

STUEBENVILLE, O., Nov. 2—Local law officials and the mayor of this wide-open steel town were silent today on the Protestant council of churches' threat to clean up the city if "police will give us the guns."

Mayor George W. Floto was out of town, Sheriff Robert D. Bates of Jefferson county had no comment to make.

Harlan T. Chapman, state liquor department enforcement chief offered yesterday to clean out liquor "cheat" spots if either local police authorities or citizens requested assistance but so far the invitation has not been forthcoming.

The offer came after pastors in Stuebenville's Protestant council of churches blasted the local administration and county law enforcement with "make us policemen and give us guns and we'll clean up this city of vice, crime, gambling and corruption."

The pastor's demand was prompted by the shooting of Bernard K. Clark, 32, Cleveland Heights ex-Marine, in a local night club.

CYCLIST KILLED

LANCASTER, Nov. 2—Raymond Cupp, 42, Lancaster, was killed last night in a traffic accident one mile west of Lancaster on U. S. Route 22, the state highway patrol reported. They said Cupp's neck was broken when the motorcycle he rode was in collision with an automobile.

Krug was represented by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Warner Gardner and Navy Capt. N. H. Collisson, federal coal administrator. Lewis sent five UMW officials headed by Vice President John O'Leary.

None of the conferees would disclose what was discussed or explain the reason for the policy of secrecy.

During yesterday's sessions, the bituminous operators negotiating committee, which failed to reach an agreement with the union last Spring, issued a statement charging that "politically minded men" in the administration had capitulated to Lewis.

PUBLIC WARNED AGAINST TIPS ON SURPLUSES

War Assets Administration today warned the public against being taken in by the advertising of sharpshooters who, with the aid of phony tipsters and questionable publications, are flim-flaming a small fortune from veterans, farmers, gas station operators and even more prosperous non-priority purchasers through the ruse of offering under cover access to non-existent or reserved surplus war property at below cost.

WAA supplemented this warning with the announcement that the cases of ten such publications are under investigation by the Department of Justice, Post Office Department and Federal Trade Commission. In each case the publication purported to show subscribers short-cuts to surplus property without abiding by established sales schedules, costs and procedures.

In issuing its warning, War Assets made it plain that there are legitimate publications operated outside War Assets which are performing a real service to their subscribers.

Meanwhile the Nationalists issued a list of a second group of 200 national assembly delegates including Chiang, Madame Chiang, Madame Sun Yat-Sen, T. V. Soong and Dr. Sun. It was not clear whether Madame Sun, sister of Madame Chiang and known for her leftist leanings, would accept her selection. She is in Shanghai.

In the fighting zones the government officially announced the landing of troops near the Communist-held port of Chefoo on the north Shantung peninsula. Some Nationalist soldiers rushed into the city and street fighting was going on.

Other units, landed in amphibious operations, were closing in on the city and fighting in the suburbs. Landings were disclosed to have been made at three points. Only a vanguard was inside the city proper, with the main force meeting stiff resistance from Communists. The reds still were receiving reinforcements by sea routes from Manchuria, despite a government naval blockade.

ARABS STAGING GENERAL STRIKE IN HOLY LAND

JERUSALEM, Nov. 2—Arabs in Palestine, Syria and Lebanon held a 24-hour general strike today on the anniversary of the Balfour declaration of 1917, in which the British government promised to work for establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people.

Transportation service was halted after the strike began at sunrise. The day also is the Jewish Sabbath. Military and police armored cars were the only vehicles on the streets.

Hundreds gathered at mosques in the main Arab towns for prayers. W. N. Gray, British inspector general of police, reminded Arab organizations of a prohibition against unauthorized parades, demonstrations or wearing of uniforms.

Red-capped military police carrying shields and four-four truncheons patrolled the streets. Arabs and Jewish cafes, theaters and restaurants were closed.

Jews throughout Palestine will observe a general strike tomorrow protesting deportation of 1,300 refugees to Cyprus yesterday. Public meetings will be held in all principal towns and a large demonstration in Tel Aviv.

for unseating Franco confronted the United States and Britain once more with the choice of abandoning their old argument that what they considered drastic action against Franco either would rally the Spanish people behind him or plunge Spain into a new civil war.

Before the political committee can pass the Polish resolutions—or any similar recommendations—on to the assembly for final action, the security council must drop the Spanish case from its agenda. This was expected to be done without a fight late Monday.

The trusteeship proposal readied by the Russians was disclosed to American officials at an extraordinary luncheon meeting between Soviet and U. S. delegation members Thursday, it was learned. At that time, the Russians disclosed frankly the interpretation they intended to place on an article in the UN charter covering trusteeship agreements. And the Americans indicated they would have to sound Washington on the U. S. attitude toward this interpretation.

If Porter should decide to resign ahead of OPA's demise, he would find his former job as chairman of the federal communications commission awaiting him. Those close to him say it's his for the asking, whenever he wants it.

Porter took over the OPA job last February. The vacancy he left on FCC never has been filled. Charles R. Denny has been serving as acting chairman in his absence.

Porter was mentioned as a candidate for secretary of commerce after Henry Wallace was ousted, but the job went to W. Averell Harriman. He also has been mentioned as a Kentucky senatorial possibility, and as possible successor to White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross.

OEA CONTENTS LEVIES WILL NOT HELP TEACHERS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2—Ohio education association officials today said the financial problems of schools in the state would not be solved by wholesale passage of school mill levies.

"Even by voting heavy levies on themselves, poorer school districts won't get much money out of them for salary increases," an association official said as voters in 60 per cent of the state's cities prepared to go to the polls next week to vote on levies.

OEA recently hired an advertising agency to plug its case for higher teachers salaries.

B. A. Stevens, OEA assistant secretary for research, said he hoped the publicity campaign would impress upon the members of the state legislature the need for increasing the state's aid to schools.

"That's the only way we will get higher salaries for our teachers that mean anything," he said.

to undersecretary of State Dean Acheson.

Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands ambassador, issued a three nation statement announcing that the three nations were demanding a hand in decisions on Germany's future frontiers as well as her future political-economic status.

Loudon explained he and his colleagues were seeking quick action because the big four meeting here was imminent and that Germany's three small western neighbors wanted a hand in preventing a recurrence of German aggression from the start.

Loudon said nothing about the internal debate in the Netherlands over territorial demands against Germany. The Dutch parliament has been debating the subject in secret. The issue is not over whether to ask for border rectification. There is general Dutch agreement on that. But there are broad differences over how much to ask for—whether to limit it to "straightening" the frontier which would take into Holland less than 100,000 Germans or to take much more and create a German minority of several hundred thousands.

There was no immediate big four reaction to the Dutch-Belgian-Luxembourg charge. But there appeared to be confidence that the one certainty was that the Belgian-Dutch-Luxembourg demand would be countered with similar demands from Germany's smaller eastern neighbors—Poland and Czechoslovakia, possibly Yugoslavia because of her frontier with Austria, and also Denmark because of Schleswig-Holstein.

ATOM ENGINEER SAYS NATIONS CAN MAKE BOMBS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—A. C. Klein, who headed an engineering group that laid the groundwork for the atom bomb project, said today any nation in the world can produce an atom bomb within 10 years.

In an article in "Army Ordnance" magazine, he said all the nations of the world have access to the scientific knowledge underlying production of fissionable materials.

"In addition," Klein said, "those nations which cooperated with us in the production of the bomb assembly have also had access to the production methods and engineering designs which have developed during the last four years."

He said these friendly nations could probably produce a bomb within five years, "while other nations could do so in about 10 years."

Vote for
LESTER S. REID
Lawyer and "GI" Veteran of World War II
—for—
CONGRESSMAN
11th District
On Democratic Ticket

Mr. Reid was elected Prosecuting Attorney over Republican opposition in the normal Republican County of Ross, in this District (Ross, Perry, Fairfield, Hocking and Pickaway) for 4 SUCCESSIVE TERMS (a total of 12 years) and relinquished his last 20 months of public service and VOLUNTEERED AS A "GI" in the recent war, serving 81 months.

His record, ability and integrity as a capable public official has never been questioned.

The election of Mr. Reid will assure the 11th Congressional District of a representative with legislative ability, a factor notably absent in our last Congress.

He believes that the problems confronting this Nation and the next Congress should be placed above partisanship and toward their solution has pledged his candidacy.

FRANCE EMERGES

FRANCE'S politics, always difficult for Americans to comprehend, seem complicated by divided French sentiments on the recent vote that gave the country a new constitution. Supported by a coalition of the three major political parties, namely the Catholic Popular Republicans, the Communists and the Socialists, the measure won by a bare million and a quarter majority, a third of what its proponents hoped for. Opposition by De Gaulle apparently reduced the affirmative balloting, causing many to stay away from the polls.

Two results are clear from this important election by a major European power emerging from war: De Gaulle, though unsuccessful in his fight against the constitution, continues to be a strong influence, a vigorous leader-of-the-opposition; secondly, despite divergent views of its citizenry, France has attained national unity and is marching forward from its chaotic provisional status to a permanent government.

A second election, Nov. 10, will now make possible the selection of a parliament, a working national assembly and a president. Mutilated France has recovered enough from Nazi menace to steady her ship of state and take her place among the family of great nations.

EXAMPLES FOR STUDENTS

STARVING university students in Europe are being relieved by Harvard undergraduates, who have had their dining rooms put on voluntary rationing to buy food for their needy brethren abroad. In the first week $500 was saved in this way, and sent to the University of Paris. Later donations will benefit students at the Universities of Prague, Grenoble and Vienna.

This philanthropy is not patented. Students of any college may follow this example with advantage to themselves as well as to their fellow-students overseas. Plain living and high thinking always was a good ideal for students—and other people.

MILLIONS OF LEARNERS

THE nation's colleges have a two million enrollment, of which 800,000 are veterans. This is an all high record that crowds classrooms, laboratories and dormitories everywhere to the utmost. It is an increase ranging from 40 per cent in some institutions to as much as 279 per cent in others.

This is encouraging. It's a tough world that is rolling about in the cosmos, and young people will need all the knowledge and training they can muster to survive in it. They seem to know this and are bent on being prepared.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a heavily overcast morning, but by mid-day the sun broke through. That rain was good for everything, including our cistern. Had heard the womenfolk discussing rationing, and I was fearful. Need for that passed even as Washington announced the closing of practically all the ration offices. Even the big-wigs must have got to wondering what all those hundreds of thousands of small-time autocrats were doing.

Elimination of controls certainly does not mean an immediate easing of shortages. Without any doubt prices of all legitimate merchandise will be higher for a time at least. In the meantime the black market will be here. One woman told me of needing some plywood to complete a cabinet in her kitchen and being quoted a black market price of something more than $140. She wisely refused to buy, and the other day made a purchase through legitimate channels. The price was $34 and a few cents. Such a saving as that was worth waiting for.

Some political chat on the streets. Republicans, generally, are wearing wide smiles of optimism. And with reason, too, I think. But if they only knew it all the votes their candidates receive will not be from persons voting for them. A tremendous number will be from persons who are not voting for a single thing, but are really voting "against." As an indication of what may be expected in Pickaway county—the Democratic leaders are doing little. Of course, the Republicans are doing very little, but the sun is shining on them and their need for activity is not so great.

Yes, these are strange times. Did see a line waiting at a dentist's office. Imagine that! And me with a molar exhibiting a hole that feels to my tongue to be about the size of the Grand Canyon. Refuse to walk past a dentist's office or more than nod to one of the jerkers for fear he will discover the secret. (If any dentist reads this I hope he understands I am not seeking an appointment, am just repeating rumor.)

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—One eminent Democratic campaign contributor concedes privately the Republicans should run away with the house and perhaps even make the senate tag along slightly Tuesday. He also predicts Gov. Dewey will run so strong in New York that the Democratic senate seat there will be swept surprisingly from the grasp of Lehman.

A left-leaning Truman official similarly made a bet about two weeks before election at even money that the Republicans would not gain a majority of 18 seats in the house—thereby unwittingly conceding he expected them to get about 17.

A close Truman sympathizer made a bet at 3 to 1 that the Republicans would not get control of the senate, although he would not hazard any personal funds that his administration would hold the house.

But all this is not startling news to you, if you read this column October 11 saying the Republicans might gain more than they had been claiming, pointing out there was a split in the union backing of the administration, and concluding with these words: "My election prediction is this:—The Republicans will gain firm control of the house perhaps by 16 or 17 votes, or more, and will come close to controlling the senate, perhaps within one or two votes. If the split among the unions eventuates at the polls, the scope of victory will be enlarged to the same extent as the split widens."

All this was written before any polls were published or the ensuing investigations of political reporters around the country averaged up to about the same conclusion you read here first. Republicans then were timidly awaiting the Gallup poll, which said last week Republicans held 56 percent of the national vote. Any Republicans who were waiting for this will have to wait longer. It is indefinite to the point of worthlessness. No one is running nationally this year, so the national popularity affords no detectable suspicion of how many seats the Republicans will gain or in what districts. It is too little too late, and merely broadly confirms better detailed prognostications offered by nearly every other authority earlier.

The knowing politicians do confess among themselves that some pro-Democratic reaction set in after Mr. Truman belatedly relaxed OPA controls—although they do not know how much. The Gallup poll says the gain was only 1 percent nationally, which might or might not affect some close districts, presumably not.

These accumulations of evidence have caused the administration politicians to assume their defeatist attitude. Fingers are already being pointed around in various directions. The scalp of Democratic National Chairman Hannegan is being pointed to again. Although the call is feeble so far, it will swell into a roar if the expected happens Tuesday. Many southern Demos think Hannegan played to closely with CIO, while most Demo-congressmen will tell you the CIO ran itself out earlier and lacked the influence Hannegan expected. Others blame Mr. Truman's woeful muddling of the price-wage policies since he first astonishingly vetoed the congressional OPA bill last June. Still others contend he did not get the meat out soon

New Treatment of Arthritis

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CHRONIC arthritis or inflammation of the joints is a widespread, painful, and sometimes crippling disease. It is also something of a mystery, for, though its effects are well-known, its exact cause has never been determined.

As always, in such cases, treatment has been more or less on a trial-and-error basis, and doctors are continually on the lookout for new and better methods of relieving their patients, with the result that arthritis has been treated with everything from gold salts to cobra venom.

Vitamin Treatments

It is not surprising then, that during the last few years since vitamins have taken their place in the scientific limelight, they should have been tried for this disabling affliction.

In a recent survey of the subject, Dr. Cornelius H. Traeger of New York, declares that only one vitamin has been of value in treating arthritic patients, but that one is very beneficial.

He says that vitamin A has no place in the treatment of arthritis. Patients have been given large doses of it without any appreciable effect on either the severity or the course of the disease.

Vitamin B-complex also has been tried and it was found that none of the patients was benefited insofar as his arthritic symptoms were concerned by the use of this preparation, or any of the vitamins which make it up, such as vitamin B-1, niacin, or riboflavin.

The same thing seems to be true where vitamin C is concerned. This does not mean, however, that if a patient with arthritis is suffering from definite symptoms indicating a vitamin deficiency, the proper vitamin preparations should not be taken under the directions of the physician.

Dr. Traeger has found that large doses of vitamin D, called electrically-activated vaporized sterol, have proved most helpful in the treatment of arthritis. He has not only given the preparation by mouth, but also by injection into a muscle. With the latter form of treatment no reactions occurred, such as headache or stomach upsets. At present, he is using both forms of treatment together, and finds that this is safe and causes no upsetting reaction.

Conclusive Experiment

As a result of the treatment of over 500 patients with chronic arthritis, over a period of eight years, he has come to the conclusion that vitamin D in the form mentioned is beneficial. Should any slight upsets occur as a result of its use, these may be relieved by reducing the dose or discontinuing the treatment for a time.

Thus it would seem that, of all the vitamins, the only one which appears to have any definite effect on arthritis is vitamin D, or electrically-activated vaporized sterol. The other vitamins can only be expected to help if the patient has definite evidences of vitamin deficiency.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

LYDIA HAD come in on the train to New York that morning to shop, and later to call on Theo and Kirby. Two had called, asking her to come at three-thirty if she wanted to see the baby. And her feelings were a mingling of excitement at finding herself, the small town girl, on Fifth Avenue (she and Betty had come up twice for week-ends since they had been in the east) and of a sharp curiosity to see Theo and Kirby again. Yet at the center of her mind with all other thoughts springing from it was the thought of Chris, who had left four days ago, who had left a soldier, who would return a civilian once more.

Standing at a counter where a salesgirl was showing her linens, she looked suddenly transfixed. Was Chris at this moment removing the uniform he had worn for three years? He would fold it carefully and look at it, his face taut, and then slowly reach for the brown tweeds she had packed for him. And he, being he, would always feel a hunger that would never know its gratification, the hunger of a job he had left undone. And even though the war was over and he was technically free, he would still think of those men, his men, who had died in alien places. . . . That's the man who will be coming back to you in brown tweeds, Lydia. A man with a hunger, with memories you will never share and a shocked and weary mind.

"Here's a luncheon set that's colorful," the salesgirl said. Lydia looked at her.

"Yes. Oh, yes. This is what I want."

Colors. . . . Because the colors of war are very dull.

She picked up her parcels and went out into the cold December sun. Because she did not know where the place was that Theo lived she decided to walk a little before taking a taxi.

In the cerise-colored coat and a little hat with a brim made of the same material as her coat (Betty had finally sent her clothes) she thought not of shop windows or the passing parade or the price of theater tickets as she had on her two precious visits here, but of preparing herself to meet Kirby and Theo again. It was difficult not to think of Chris constantly and to wonder how long it would be before he found his way back to the work that he had loved. Find his way. . . . How true, she thought. In the inferno of D Day and during those 40 days in the line which he had described to her in clipped sentences one afternoon in the sun in Georgia, his mind had lost its cohesiveness as his leg had lost its complete use possibly forever. And until his mind found its cohesiveness and until he could go into court master in the art of forgetting his impediment, he would be as one who had lost his way.

Easy for us, she thought, to tell them, we who know nothing of warped places in tired minds and of hurt, incapacitated bodies. Easy for us who do not know . . . who were not there.

She had not realized she had walked so far. She halted a taxi and gave the driver the address of Theo's apartment and tried, for a little while at least, not to think of that which had become her highest hope: to see Chris walk into a courtroom again—confident and free.

The sumptuousness of the foyer in the apartment building in which Theo and her family lived undoubtedly expressed the standard of living of those who dwelt above it. For it was modern and spacious and, to a daughter of a school teacher who had always lived in genteel shabbiness, inexpressibly beautiful. Her glance lingered on the fresh flowers as she walked to the elevator. Where there were fresh flowers, she always saw them first and last.

She felt tremulous as a demure-looking little colored maid opened the door. She gripped her parcels and pursed her lips when, an instant later, she stood on the threshold of the living room. It was a gay and modern room with tables made of fine-textured, light-colored wood. No genteel shabbiness here, but rich colors and fine wood and sun pouring through the broad window. It was as of the moment as post-war.

Obviously Kirby had heard neither the bell nor her footsteps over the thick beige rug. For Kirby was sitting on the rug, playing, laughing, talking with her baby. . . . All the silly talk that mothers talk to infants Kirby was talking now, and all the absurd noises she was making, too. She was neither still nor awkward nor was her voice harsh. Her large hands were very gentle as the baby, propped against pillows, toppled over and she lifted him against the pillows again. A fair, pretty baby, fat and full of gurgles and laughter. . . . Kirby with her child who had been brought for his daily visit. The nurse was not in the room.

Kirby turned her head quickly and looked up.

"Oh, it's you," she said. "Hello. Take off your things."

Lydia took off her coat and put it with her purse and parcels on a chair. Then she dropped on the rug beside Kirby and the baby.

"He's wonderful," she said, wanting Kirby to like her, wanting more for the magnet inside the girl to release her warmth again. "I'd like to touch him, but I'm afraid my hands might not be clean. I've been going in and out of stores. He looks at me and knows I'm a stranger, but he doesn't cry. It's always so disconcerting when they look at you and burst into tears."

"I wouldn't know," Kirby said. She kept her head averted. "I don't know anything about babies."

"But looking after them when they're yours is perfectly natural, I'm told."

"I don't look after him. The nurse does. I told her to take a walk or go to the movies or something. He's mine, this hour. . . ."

"He's really yours all the time, Kirby."

The caramel-colored eyes were mocking when they were turned on her. "Are you kidding?" Then,

"Mother and Raphael will be here shortly. She phoned there'd been some mistake at the hairdresser's about her appointment and she'd have to wait, but that Raphael would pick her up there. She said you were to wait until she came. Raphael is very anxious to meet you. You'll like him. He's a good guy. A break after the LAST one. . . . Andrew. . . . That was the one!"

At least Kirby was talking, Lydia thought.

She said, "I don't want to take your time away from the baby."

Kirby's brightly painted mouth drew in. "Everybody calls him the 'baby.' He has a name. His name is—Alan. Nobody wants to call him by his name. You should see at what great lengths they go to avoid it. His name is Alan. I want him to be called Alan. He is Alan, starting all over again."

Her mouth trembled, but she didn't cry. And then with almost unbelievable tenderness she picked up Alan and gave him a toy to rattle and observe.

Lydia got up and sat apart from them. For several minutes Kirby played with Alan. Then with her long legs crossed and the small, fair head against her blue sweater, she looked up and smiled.

"You're all right, Lydia. You're okay."

"I'm glad. I want very much to be okay with you, Kirby."

Kirby's lip curled and she laughed a short, derisive laugh. "Hal! You sure messed up things properly. Everyone was thinking what a good idea it would be if Chris and I got together. It would have solved everything, don't you see?"

"I'm afraid I don't understand."

A nerve in Kirby's bright mouth twitched. "It's easy. . . . Because when Raphael gets the call to go home, what about Alan and me? We're by-products of war. The war widow and her child. There must be lots of us. We're problems. No one knows what to do about us and we don't know what to do about ourselves. If we go home to mother and then get a job, we don't see our babies grow up. I wonder if it ever occurs to the warmongers that after a war a generation of kids never know their fathers and hardly ever see their mothers."

"Some of them, of course, will marry again."

"But if a boy wants to marry us, he has another man's child to consider. The child always has a different name. Boys aren't crazy to marry girls who have babies. And if no one will marry us and we don't work, then we have to take care of us. We're dependents. . . . The war brought us love and marriage and birth and death, everything, the whole works, in less than a year. . . . I'm certainly shooting off a lot today. Either I don't say anything or I say too much."

"I'm glad you are," Lydia said. "You said so little the day we came. I was afraid you were unfriendly. I didn't want that. We're all sort of the same family, you know."

would prove hazardous to cherished objectives. Excesses, waste, and indulgence in funds, energies, words and deeds, might exact severe penalties.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare to adopt a shrewd, reasonable, balanced and generous course of action, in the face of proper appreciation and support or with definite provocations, aggravating and exciting. Indulgence in immoderation, impulsive comebacks and excesses and extravagance in words and deeds might jeopardize reasonable prospects. Sound judgment and good will should win out against false and difficult circumstances.

A child born on this day, while having good prospects for success and happiness in life, may have to fight for its cherished hopes and wishes. It may be shrewd and sagacious in such attainment.

For Sunday, November 3

SUNDAY'S astrological forecast is of radical and far-reaching significance, in which there is likely to be an abrupt and sudden precipitation of events and circumstances involving private, professional, social and business life with revolutionary consequence. It is probable that dramatic and breathtaking episodes may develop unwanted crises, conflicts and upsets of deep-seated force. Tact, discretion, and discrimination are urged.

The Birthday Forecast

Those whose birthday it is stand at the threshold of a year of the unpredictable and probably unprecedented. Sudden and dramatic events and crises are precipitated, having long-term and radical effect on the future, its destiny and fortunes. These may demand a complete about-face, change travel, amazing adventures and thrilling romance, but all may turn to "Dead Sea fruit" by impulsive, erratic, unstudied performances and overly-eager embrace. Much discernment and discrimination may promote excellent and happy culminations.

A child born on this day may be eminently creative, ingenious and skillful, with romance and adventure beckoning to dramatic experiences. But its over-ardent and reckless impulses might defeat its high purpose if not calmly regulated.

Miss Paul Is Honored At Miscellaneous Shower

E. K. Barnhill Home Is Scene Of Party For Bride-Elect

Mrs. Elliott K. Barnhill and Mrs. Frank Barnhill, Jr., entertained at the Elliott Barnhill home on North Scioto street Friday evening with a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Martha Jane Paul, bride-elect of Buford Newton Daniels.

For the occasion the entire dining room table was covered by a miniature wedding scene. The little bride and groom, the flower girl and bridesmaids were leaving the church through a garden of flowers.

The evening was spent in dressing miniature brides and grooms. Mrs. Dudley Carpenter received first prize for the best dressed doll.

After Miss Paul opened her gifts refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Guests for the evening were Mrs. Ervin Leist, Mrs. Dudley Carpenter, Mrs. Frank Barnhill, Sr., Mrs. Leslie Pontius, Mrs. V. D. Kerns, Mrs. Harley Colwell, Mrs. Bert Shimp, Mrs. Jack Clifton, Mrs. David Glick, Mrs. Edward Ebert, Mrs. Frank Wantz, Mrs. Emmett Barnhart, Miss Ella Crum, Miss Mattie Crum, Miss Marvene Howard, Miss Regina Thorton, and the honored guest.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Alvin Sprayberry and Mrs. R. R. Douglas, Macon, Ga.

MISS LOCKARD IS BRIDE OF HOWARD EITEL

Mr. and Mrs. George Lockard, Williamsport, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ethel Jean, to Howard E. Eitel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eitel, route 2. The double ring ceremony was performed Friday, in the home of the Rev. George Troutman, East Mount street.

Miss Jean Eitel, sister of the groom, served as the maid of honor. Paul Eitel, cousin of the groom, acted as best man.

For her marriage the bride wore a gray striped suit with cherry crape accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mr. Eitel's gift to his bride was a double strand of pearls and matching ear clips.

Parents of both the bride and groom attended the ceremony.

The bride attended Salt Creek high school and is now employed by the Bell Vernon Seal Test company. Mr. Eitel is a graduate of Jackson high school and is associated with the Kroger Baking company, Columbus.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Eitel will make their home at 1360 Wilson Avenue, Columbus.

Christ Lutheran Organizations Hold Combined Meeting

A combined meeting of Christ's Lutheran Ladies society and Luther league was held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barthelmas, North Scioto street. Thirty members and guests enjoyed a cooperative supper which preceded the meeting.

The Rev. George Troutman had charge of the devotion. The topic subject was, "Christ For the Japanese - Americans." During the business session, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Troutman, final plans were made for the first Sunday observance of the 50th anniversary of Trinity Lutheran church. The anniversary will be observed throughout the month of November.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel, Jackson township, will be hosts for the December meeting. A Christmas party is planned for this session and gifts will be exchanged.

Kingston Garden Club Meets Monday

Mrs. Donald H. Watt, regional director of district 9, of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs, will be guest speaker when members of the Kingston Garden club meet Monday at 2:30 P.M. in the home of Mrs. Ralph Head, Pickaway township.

Mrs. Watt will use as her subject, "Making Floral Picture Arrangements." She will demonstrate the fundamental principles in design and color and will offer constructive criticism of artistic arrangements submitted by members. Mrs. Watt is a state accredited judge.

Mrs. Watt and Mrs. R. V. Hamman, county contact chairman, will judge the club member's hand decorated year books.

CLASS SPONSORS LECTURE

Shining Light Bible class of the United Brethren church will sponsor an illustrated flower lecture in the church, at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

HERBS IS TOPIC OF DISCUSSION AT GARDEN CLUB

Pickaway Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Turney Glick Friday evening with forty members answering the roll call. Mrs. Blanche Motschman, club president, conducted a short business session.

It was announced at this session that the county meeting will be held in the Methodist church at Williamsport November 8. Deer-creek Garden Club will be hostess for this occasion.

Mrs. Milton Kellstadt was received as a new member. After the brief meeting Mrs. Loring Evans, program chairman, introduced Mrs. W. C. Watson who, assisted by Miss Florence Dunton led a round table discussion on, "Herbs and their medicinal quality."

Arrangements for a Thanksgiving table were displayed by the members of the club. The exhibits were judged and prizes awarded to Mrs. John Mast, Mrs. G. Guy Campbell, Mrs. Blanche Motschman and Mrs. Fred Cook.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. R. F. Lilly, Mrs. H. B. Given, Mrs. Orion King, Mrs. J. Sam Morris.

Gleaners Class Meeting Is Held At Arledge Home

Gleaners Sunday school class of the Pontius United Brethren church met Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arledge, East Franklin street. Thirty members and guests were present.

Jacob Glitt, president, had charge of the devotion. Mrs. Sudie Peters offered prayer. During the business session the group decided to give support to a missionary again this year. Miss Ethel Brobst, class teacher, offered prayer.

Officers were elected for the coming year. Mrs. Larry Goodman, president, Paul Elliott, vice president, Mrs. Jacob Glitt, secretary, Mrs. Charles Walker, treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Clark, assistant treasurer, Miss Ethel Brobst, pianist and Mrs. Marvene Turner, assistant pianist.

Mrs. Clarence Clark and Miss Mary Clark served as the program committee for the occasion. A series of readings and contests were held following which refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be a Christmas party at the home of Miss Ethel Brobst, Pickaway township.

United Brethren Ladies Aid Meets

October session of the United Brethren Ladies Aid was held Thursday evening in the community house. Mrs. Ed Milliron led the devotion and was in charge of the program.

Mrs. C. O. Kerns had charge of the business session. Plans were made for the annual turkey supper to be held November 14. Proceeds from the affair will go toward building a new community house. Mrs. Helen Dawson announced that her group had completed its quota for the building fund.

During the program hour readings were presented by Mrs. Myrtle Trimmer, Daisy and Viola Woolver, Mrs. John Dunkle and Mrs. Cecil Porter. Mrs. Milliron led the group in prayer. Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. O. Kerns, Mrs. John Kerns and Mrs. Ira Valentine.

MEN AND BOYS PROGRAMS SET AT U. B. CHURCH

In cooperation with a denominational emphasis, the men and boys of the First United Brethren church will receive recognition in a two day observance, November 3 and 4.

Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, a Men's Day program has been arranged by the committee. Presiding at the morning worship will be Ray Johnson, president of the Harper Bible class. The responsive scripture reading will be read by Montford Kirkwood, Jr., representing the returned service men. C. B. Wilkins, president of the Men's Bible class, will offer the morning prayer. Ross Kirkpatrick, vice-president of the church trustee board, will direct the presentation of the title and offering and give the dedicatory prayer. A male quartet, consisting of Charles and Ross Kirkpatrick and Montford Kirkwood, Senior and Junior, will sing. The guest speaker, Dr. J. F. Smith, department of speech, Otterbein College, will deliver an address on the theme: "Christian Men". Ray Johnson will pronounce the benediction. Ushers from the Youth Sunday School class will be James Starkey, Frank Moats, Jr., Robert Huffer and Donald Woodward.

The local Hi-Y organization and the various Boy Scout troops of the community will attend the service.

At 6 p. m., at the Youth Fellowship meeting at the church, Mrs. Carl L. Wilson, youth director, will give special emphasis to the young men and their responsibility to the church program. Twenty-five young men are expected to attend this service.

Monday night at 7 o'clock at the Church community house, the men and boys will continue their festivities by enjoying a roast turkey dinner with a program of music, humorous readings, sports films, short speeches and a closing devotion. Because of the limited banquet facilities of the community house about 100 men and boys will attend.

In announcing these special meetings, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor, says, "The men and boys' gatherings have a definite purpose of creating better understanding between the boys and men of the community, thus lending towards a more wholesome fellowship, which seems most needed in our present social order. Thus all men and boys who do not attend church elsewhere are invited to come to these services."

MINISTERS TO MEET HERE AT 10 A. M. MONDAY

Pickaway County Ministerial Association members will meet at 10 a. m. Monday in St. Philip's Episcopal church.

Devotions will be in charge of the Rev. Leonard W. Mann, Kingston. The address will be given by the Rev. Clarence Swearingen, First Methodist church.

The Rev. L. C. Sherburne is chairman of the committee in charge of the meeting.

'THE MAN JOHN WESLEY' SUNDAY SERMON TOPIC

The pastor of the First Methodist church, the Rev. Clarence Swearingen, will use for his sermon topic Sunday morning the second of his series "The Man John Wesley".

The choir will sing "O for a Closer Walk With God" by Anderson. Mrs. Harold Deffenbaugh will direct and Carl C. Palm will be at the organ console.

ANNIVERSARY OF CHRIST CHURCH TO BE OBSERVED

Christ Lutheran church, located seven miles west of Circleville on Route 56, will celebrate throughout the month of November the 50th anniversary of the dedication of the present church. Four special services have been arranged, one for each Sunday in the month.

This Sunday, November 3, at 2:30 p. m., the first of the golden anniversary services has been designated as "Church Organization Sunday". The Rev. George L. Troutman, pastor, will deliver the sermon taking as his theme, "Fifty Years by God's Grace". The church choir, under the direction of Mrs. Harry Kern, will render the anthem. Special instrumental music will be presented by the Sunday School orchestra of Trinity Lutheran church.

Mrs. Lyle Davis will give the history of the ladies missionary society. Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel will present the history of the youth organization of the church, the Luther League. Miss Helen Margaret Kern will read the 50 year history of the Sunday School.

Sunday, November 10, an evening service, designated as "Community Night", will be held. Invitation is being extended to all families of the community to attend this service. Dr. James Schillinger, president of the Ohio district of the American Lutheran church, will be the anniversary speaker on community night.

Sunday evening, November 17, is Circleville parish service. Members of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church are invited to attend. The guest speaker for this third anniversary service is the Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff, St. Paul's Lutheran church, Ashville route 1.

Final of the golden anniversary services will be held Sunday afternoon, November 24. This will be the Homecoming service and is set for 3 p. m. Dr. R. E. Golladay, pastor of Grace Lutheran church, Columbus, will be the speaker.

The congregation has designated all anniversary gifts and offerings for a special building project. The anniversary project is to excavate under the present church and equip a basement for Sunday School and social purposes.

The public is invited to attend any or all of these golden anniversary services.

PROMOTION DAY PLANNED BY U. B. CHURCH SCHOOL

Continuing the Fall rally emphasis, Promotion Day will be observed at the First United Brethren Church, East Main street, Sunday at 9:15 A. M., when the Church School meets for worship and Bible study.

Ray Johnson, assistant superintendent, will preside at the opening exercise. After the lesson study, the school will assemble in the sanctuary, where the promotion ceremony will be conducted.

Since most of the pupils eligible for promotion are in the children's department, Miss Gladys Noggle, children's director, will address the school on the topic, "Why Promotion Day?" Following this explanation, the teachers will present their pupils for promotion and formally introduce them to their new teacher, who will extend a welcome.

Mrs. Robert Dick, Miss Betty Jane May, Mrs. Montford Kirkwood, Jr., Mrs. Ruby Brown, Mrs. Porter Martin, John Kerns, Mrs. Carl L. Wilson and Miss Lucille Kirkwood are teachers participating in the promotion ceremony.

Paul Champions Freedom

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 3 is Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 5:1-18, the Memory Verse being Galatians 5:13, "Through love be servants one to another.")

IN LAST week's lesson we found Paul preaching Christ to the Gentiles, when disbelieving Jews refused to accept the gospel. In this one we see how he championed the cause of the Gentiles, and won his point. An eminent churchman has called this 15th chapter of Acts the "Magna Charta of the Christian church."

The chapter starts by telling of "certain men" who came to Antioch, where Paul and Barnabas had such great success in preaching to those not of Jewish blood, and insisting that unless the new converts would allow themselves to obey the old Jewish rite of circumcision, they could not belong to the church, or be saved. This rite differentiated the Jews from all other peoples, and these men felt it was necessary for all who joined the church to obey the Old Testament mandate.

This was a serious matter and the first dissension in the young church. Paul and Barnabas had converted many Gentiles and they felt it was not necessary for them to virtually become Jews to be saved.

It was a matter for the elders at Jerusalem to decide, so it was agreed that Paul and Barnabas should go at once to Jerusalem to lay the matter and their arguments before the church fathers. There could not be two denominations, one Jewish, the other Gentile. The Apostles, the Twelve, were members of the church at Jerusalem, and it was only fair that the dispute be submitted to them and to see if they would uphold Paul and Barnabas or the others. Others from the other side of the dispute went also. Passing through Phoenicia and Samaria, the two continued, "declaring the conversion of the Gentiles; and they caused great joy unto all the brethren."

Church Received Them
Arrived in Jerusalem, "they were received of the church, and of the apostles and elders, and they declared all things that God had done with them."

Certain of the Pharisees who believed presented their case, and the apostles and elders gathered to consider the matter. Peter upheld Paul and Barnabas, saying that God had decided that the Gentiles should hear the gospel, and "God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as He did unto us; And put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith."

The multitude kept silence after this and called upon Paul and Barnabas, who declared "what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them."

When they had finished James spoke, declaring that God "did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for His name." He concluded his remarks by declaring, "Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God; But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood."

After this "pleased it the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas, namely Judas, surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren."

They wrote letters, as James had suggested, telling the Gentiles, "Forasmuch as we have heard that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law; unto whom we gave no such commandment."

"It seemed good to us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by mouth."

Then they stated the rules that they had all agreed upon as necessary for Gentiles to obey as well as Jews, and which have been mentioned before in this lesson. "For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things."

The four were then dismissed and proceeded to Antioch, where they gathered many together, presented and read the letter, and there was great rejoicing.

Judas and Silas, being prophets also, "exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them." After they had tarried awhile Judas went away, but Silas stayed with Paul and Barnabas, who, having won their point and saved the church from division, "continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also."

Revival services start Monday evening at the Pilgrim Holiness church. The Rev. Charles Hook, Nelsonville, is evangelist and special music is planned, according to the announcement by the Rev. Alonzo Hill.

All members of the Luther League are asked to meet at 7:30 p. m. Sunday in the parish house in order to participate in the Federation.

Spangler, Virginia Wise, Blivian Woodward and Patsy Quinell.

Closing the promotion ceremonial, the following will be received by the pastor, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, in a graduation exercise from the Junior Church, Rodger Bennington, Mary Ruth Dawson, Donald Eldridge, Ronald Eldridge, Marilyn Francis, Gloria Leist, Wilson Martin, Lou Ann Mast, Dorothy Seyfang and Ruth Styers.

CALVARY WILL MARK FOREIGN MISSIONS DAY

"Foreign Missions Day" will be observed Sunday at Calvary Evangelical church.

The Women's Missionary Society, Miss Golda Noggle, president, will have charge of the morning worship service. Miss Noggle will give the call to worship and invocation, and Mrs. Margaret Bost will read the scripture. Prayer will be offered by Mrs. Ella Carothers and Mrs. Martin.

"Jesus, Light Eternal" is the anthem the choir has chosen to sing. The pastor will follow the theme of the morning by giving "A View of Our African Mission", at which time he will present interesting facts about work in Nigeria.

At the evening service at 7:30, the Rev. James A. Herbst will discuss the topic, "Making Light of the Kingdom", based on the stories recounted in Luke 14:15-24 and Matthew 22:1-14.

REFORMATION IS TO BE MARKED BY LUTHERANS

A special reformation service will be held this Sunday morning at Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church.

Subject of the sermon by the Rev. George L. Troutman will be "The Fundamental Principle of the Reformation", based upon the text, Romans 3, 28.

Music for the service will be presented by the senior choir of the church under the direction of Carl C. Leist with Mrs. Karl Herrmann at the organ console.

In Anglo-Saxon times in England any freeman who had acquired five hides of land and a special appointment in the king's hall became a thane.

Excerpt from Teachings of the BAHA'I FAITH

"Be reconciled, among yourselves, O sovereigns of the world, that ye may need armaments no more, save in a measure to safeguard your territories and dominions. Be united, for thereby will the tempest of discord be stilled amongst you and your people find rest. Should anyone among you take up arms against another, rise ye all against him, for this is naught but manifest justice."

TURFMEAN AGREE ASSAULT BACK IN WINNING FORM

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2—Veteran turfmen, impressed by Assault's flashy victory in the invitation Pimlico special, agreed today that the gimpy Texas horse has regained the top-notch racing form which won him the triple crown last Spring.

Assault had all his old brilliance as he ran over the same mile-and-three-sixteenths course he toured in taking the Preakness in four-and-two-fifths seconds faster time. Clocking in 1:57 flat, Assault finished six lengths in front of the late-running Stymlie, with Bridal Flower third and Turbine fourth and last.

Four gases make up natural gas: methane, ethane, propane and butane.

PEP WINS EASILY MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 2—Featherweight Champion Willie Pep won an easy 10-round decision last night over Paulie Jackson of Reading, Pa. Jackson was practically helpless during the last half of the bout.

NEWS The truth is far more penetrating. Not even a popular leader could have avoided suffering this defeatism in his party in this election. It is not due to any of the personalities or reasons suggested but to the deeper basic cause of disunity in the party and in the movement. Truman stood for CIO economic policies (spending, unemployment compensation, OPA, no strike curbs, etc.). Congress did not. These policies proved unpopular as soon as the war ended. Indeed his Democratic congress took the opposite stand on nearly every issue, trying to make itself more popular in the face of White House vetoes and threats. This split eventually reached down deeply into the unions, as well as the party, where it was finally realized the policies were unrealistic and contrary to public aspirations.

Truman and Hannegan tried to ride two horses going in opposite directions, with the usual results.

STRONG ENOUGH TO PASS
"STRONG ENOUGH TO PASS" sounds like paradoxical language. It is not, however. In fact, it applies emphatically to many a hand on which an average player makes an opening pre-emptive bid of three or four in a major, or three, four or five in a minor. Practically every first-ranker in the country now reserves those bids for hands which are worthless if set down as a dummy at any other contract. If the hand with a long suit is of any value whatsoever at No Trumps, or on the defense, the fine player finds it "strong enough to pass," with the idea of coming in later.

♣ K J 6 3

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)
West North East South
4♥ Pass 5♥

Properly fearing a lead from his side honors, North opened a trump against that contract, and it was set two tricks, with the loss of a couple of tricks apiece in spades and diamonds. West remonstrated with East for his raise that got the side set one trick more than necessary.

West, though, was the real culprit. To begin with, he did not have enough playing tricks to be within two of the number required by his 4-Hearts bid when vulnerable. Secondly, and more important, he did not have a hand which was worthless on defense, as his A would have been good for a trick. Third, he did not have a hand which was worthless at No Trumps, but one probably worth seven tricks to his partner. He was, in other words, "strong enough to pass," then bid later.

If West had passed, East should have opened with 1-Diamond, whereupon West should have called 2-Hearts, East 2-No Trumps, West 3-Hearts and East 3-No Trumps. At this contract, nine tricks would have been absolutely sure—same number as at hearts—no matter what suit the defenders opened.

Your Week-End Question
Why is a small card from a suit headed by the ace usually considered the worst of all leads against a trump contract?

Local Election Interest Centers In School Fund Voting

EIGHT LEVIES, ONE BOND ISSUE TO BE VOTED ON

Funds For Regular Operating Expenses Asked In City, County Districts

Interest of Circleville and Pickaway county citizens who will vote next Tuesday appears focused chiefly on eight proposed special school tax levies and one proposed school bond issue.

The 40 polling places in the city and county will be open from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

The individual ballots pertaining to the special school tax levies and the school bond issue are of the "for or against" type.

Voters in the Saltcreek local school district will decide the fate of a proposed $79,200 bond issue for constructing and improving a fireproof school building. It provides a tax levy outside of the 10-mill limitation estimated to average 20 cents for each $100 of valuation for a maximum period of 24 years to pay the bond principal and interest.

Jackson township rural school district voters will ballot on a special tax levy for schools, not to exceed 20 cents for each $100 of valuation over a three-year period.

Monroe township rural school district voters will ballot on a special tax levy for schools, not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation over a five-year period.

Citizens of the Ashville village school district will decide a proposed special tax levy for schools, not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation over a five-year period.

Voters of Deercreek township rural school district will ballot on a special school tax levy, not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation over a three-year period.

Tarleton rural school district voters will decide a special school tax levy, not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation over a five-year period.

Stars Stage Battle

A FIGHT TO THE FINISH is waged (above) by Gary Cooper and Marc Lawrence in a tense moment from "Cloak and Dagger," which arrives at the Grand theatre Sunday for three days. The film, a powerful drama of romance and adventure, also features Robert Alda and introduces Lilli Palmer, famous European actress, to the American screen.

school district will decide the fate of a school tax levy, not to exceed 20 cents for each $100 of valuation over a five-year period.

Washington township rural school district voters will decide a school tax levy, not to exceed 40 cents for each $100 of valuation over a three-year period.

The board of education of the Circleville city school district will issue a letter Monday to all Circleville voters urging passage of the proposed levy. Following is a copy of the letter:

"Dear Voters of Circleville:

When you go to the polls tomorrow, you will be handed a ballot similar to the sample ballot on the reverse side of this letter.

"This ballot covers the proposed two-mill levy for the Circleville City Schools. This levy furnishes a part of the funds necessary to the every-day operation of our school. Without this levy, it would not be possible to continue to operate our schools efficiently.

"This levy is not a new one. It does not create any new or additional tax. It is simply a renewal of a levy already in force.

Big 4 Ministers Gather For Council Meeting

NEIGHBORS ASK FOR SHARE IN
GERMAN TALKSNetherlands, Luxembourg,
Belgium Demand Part
In Framing Treaty

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—The big four foreign ministers, gathering here today on the eve of their council meeting next week, faced a revolt by Germany's small western neighbors against exclusive big four framing of the German peace treaty even in its preliminary stages.

The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—each of which desires rectification of its border with Germany—delivered their demarches to United States, Great Britain, Soviet Russia and France two days before the council of foreign ministers convenes Monday at the Waldorf Astoria hotel. The big four meets to try to write final treaties for Hitler's satellites and then begin preliminary discussions on Germany.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin arrive here today.

Bevin is aboard the S. S. Aquitania, scheduled to dock late today, along with the big four deputies who have been working on the draft satellite treaties and the suggested amendments ever since the Paris peace conference ended Oct. 15.

Planes will fly here from Washington late today to confer with his deputy, James Clement Dunn, and probably to have advance talks with Bevin and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Molotov has been here since the opening of the United Nations assembly.

The fourth member of the big four—French Premier Georges Bidault—will not be here for the opening of the big four talks. He will be represented by his assistant in the quai d'orsay, Couve de Murville, until after the French elections Nov. 10.

But Bidault will be in time for the subject in which he has greatest interest—Germany. The big four will not begin to talk about that No. 1 problem until about Nov. 20.

The Dutch-Belgian-Luxembourg challenge of big four domination of the treaty with Germany came as a surprise late yesterday in Washington when the diplomatic representatives of those countries personally handed their joint note.

LAW OFFICIALS
SILENT ON PLAN OF CHURCHMEN

STEBENVILLE, O., Nov. 2—Local law officials and the mayor of this wide-open steel town were silent today on the Protestant council of churches' threat to clean up the city if "police will give us the guns."

Mayor George W. Floto was out of town, Sheriff Robert D. Bates of Jefferson county had no comment to make.

Harlan T. Chapman, state liquor department enforcement chief offered yesterday to clean out liquor "cheat" spots if either local police authorities or citizens requested assistance but so far the invitation has not been forthcoming.

The offer came after pastors in Steubenville's Protestant council of churches blasted the local administration and county law enforcement with "make us policemen and give us guns and we'll clean up this city of vice, crime, gambling and corruption."

The pastor's demand was prompted by the shooting of Bernard K. Clark, 32, Cleveland Heights ex-Marine, in a local nite club.

COTTON RULES
RELAXED SOME
Democrats Making Late
Bid For Voters' SupportAdministration Hopes That Dropping Of OPA Order
Will Solve Trouble

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—The administration watched hopefully today to see if its action in junking one of OPA's textile pricing regulations will bolster the erratic cotton market.

The regulation, which cotton state congressmen contended discouraged textile manufacturers from building up cotton inventories, was scrapped at the direct order of Reconversion Director John R. Steelman.

Some OPA officials were openly skeptical that the action will do any good. They said the real reason manufacturers aren't buying is that they're afraid they'll be "caught" with a lot of high-priced cotton.

The agriculture department, meanwhile, predicted that October, 1946, will be remembered as a "black month" in the history of American cotton. It said there have been few times when prices dropped so much so quickly.

At the same time, OPA released a report showing that the price of cotton goods climbed 21.7 per cent between last June 29 and Oct. 19 while woolen and worsted prices increased only 1.6 per cent and rayon did not increase at all.

The price of other textile products increased 13.9 per cent during the same period. Cotton prices outpaced those of other textiles because of an escalator clause in the price law which links cotton textile prices to raw cotton prices.

In a letter to Price Chief Paul Porter, Steelman said his action stemmed directly from the recent market breakings which sent cotton prices plummeting down $50 a bale in less than two weeks.

BRITISH PAPER SAYS U. S. HAS
96 ATOM BOMBS

LONDON, Nov. 2—The Daily Express published a story today stating that the United States has 96 atom bombs and can produce six a month in a plant at Hanford, Wash.

The story gave no specific source for its statements, but said the details had been stated authoritatively.

According to the Express story, the atom bomb weighs 9,000 pounds is about 25 feet long and has two parachutes attached. The B-29 carrying an atom bomb must have its two bomb bays linked together, the newspaper said.

The two B-29s reduced the stockpile from a maximum of 98 to 96, the Express said.

By United Press
Time was running out on the 1946 campaign today as Democrats put on a final flurry of speech-making in their drive to retain control of congress.

With next Tuesday's vital elections only three days away, the Republicans were silent, their campaign about over.

Democratic leaders of both the house and senate took speakers' stand, House Speaker Sam Rayburn at a Democratic rally, and Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley in a radio speech.

Rayburn, speaking at President Truman's home town, Independence, Mo., said the election of a Republican congress would "divide" the government, hampering the United States in all fields.

Barkley rang in the foreign policy issue, heretofore virtually untouched by either party. He said the Republican party is "shot through with the old isolationist virus" and that the present bipartisan foreign policy would not survive under a GOP congress.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak in behalf of democratic candidates in a radio speech (ABC). She is being sponsored by the Democratic national committee.

President Truman arrived at Independence, where he will vote on Tuesday. The President held to his plan not to make any political speeches, refusing even to make platform comments during brief train stops at three Missouri cities.

Both CIO President Philip Murray and AFL President William Green had last minute instructions for their union members.

Speaking from Pittsburgh over the ABC and NBC networks, Murray called on labor to defeat "reactionary" candidates and elect friends of the workingman.

Green, in a letter to state and local AFL affiliates, wrote, "Vote against those who are against you and vote for those who will stand by you."

Attorney General Tom Clark warned that ballot-box stuffing in congressional contests is a federal offense. He conceded, however, that the federal government is powerless to prevent frauds involving local or state candidates.

Whether he cares to remain at the OPA helm under these circumstances, Porter himself declined to say. Those close to him said he'll "probably see the OPA fight through." But OPA officials say the fight is already over.

With more than 40 per cent of the economy decontrolled, and with wholesale decontrol orders coming out almost daily, they add OPA already, is setting up plans for liquidation in the belief that congress will complete the job of putting it out of business when it convenes in January.

Last night, for the second time in two days, Steelman overruled Porter on decontrol policy when he wiped out an OPA textile order said by southern congressmen to

HOUSE SHORTAGE VICTIMS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2—Actress Susan Hayward, fire in her Irish eyes, declared today that she, her husband and their twin sons would stay in their two hotel rooms until they could find a landlord who does not demand a "black market rental."

Miss Hayward, actor Jess Barker, and 18-month-old Timothy and Gregory were evicted yesterday for the fourth time in less than two years.

BRITISH CLAIM
'TERRORISM' IN BULGARIA VOTESpokesman Says Bulgarian
Militia Scared Voters
Before Reds Won

LONDON, Nov. 2—A foreign office spokesman charged today that "severe terrorism" during the Bulgarian election campaign "no doubt strongly influenced the result" of the Communist-won balloting last Sunday.

In a lengthy commentary based on British observer's reports, the foreign office spokesman charged that Bulgarian militia participated in terrorism directed against opposition parties.

He said there was a "marked falling off of terrorism during election day" and the opposition, "while doubtless influenced by fear of reprisals and by uncertainty as to whether the vote was in fact secret, appears to have been generally free to cast their votes."

The spokesman said that while the opposition was permitted to conduct a number of campaign meetings without interruption, there were "measures of terrorism used, particularly in the provinces to prevent their meetings."

"Instances were reported," he said, "of organized bands of government supporters breaking up opposition meetings. There were numerous examples of setting up road blocks by militiamen and toughs to prevent opposition supporters from reaching their meetings."

A British member of the Allied control commission for Bulgaria was held up at one such road block, the spokesman said. He said a British representative had come into possession of a permit to buy woolen underwear "which was given to an elector by a government candidate."

CHINESE PLAN
COUNCIL CHANGENationalists Said Ready To Let Communists Have
Share In Setup

NANKING, Nov. 2—A top Nationalist negotiator announced today, according to unconfirmed Chinese press reports, that the government has agreed to reorganize the state council on an all-party coalition basis, presumably making way for some Communist members.

The negotiator, Shao Li-Tze, was quoted as saying the government also plans to reorganize the executive yuan after the national assembly convenes Nov. 12.

(The newspaper Ta Kung Pao reported that the government had cabled Gen. Chang Chun, now visiting in Canada after an operation in the United States, to hasten back to China. Chang, now governor of Szechuen province, was president of the executive yuan before the Sino-Japanese war.)

Shao reportedly made his announcements after a meeting with Chiang Kai-Shek. Also present at the conference were Dr. Sun Fo, Wu Te-Chen and other top government negotiators. The group drew up the government's reply to a third party proposal for direct peace negotiations between the Nationalists and the Communists.

Third party leaders met this

Only 3 absent soldiers' ballots has been returned to the Pickaway County Board of Elections up to Saturday noon and board officials said that only 4 such ballots were issued for Tuesday's election.

Under Ohio election regulations the ballots are returnable up to noon on election day. In the November, 1944, election, it was stated, 744 absent soldiers' ballots were mailed out and approximately 500 were voted and returned to the board.

BABY ARRIVES BEFORE MOTHER

WILLIAM WAYNE RAMSEY, pictured in the arms of a San Mateo, Cal., hospital nurse, has the distinction of arriving at the hospital, at the tender age of five minutes, ahead of his mother. The baby was born in the back seat of his father's car, which at that point was trapped in traffic. Arriving at the hospital the father, shown above, honked the car horn for help, and his wife handed the baby, her sixth child, out the car door to an attendant. Not realizing the infant had just been born, the attendant allowed Mrs. Ramsey to remain in the car until someone asked who the child's mother was. (International)

Russians Are Preparing
New Trusteeship Plan

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 2—A proposal empowering any of the big five nations to veto United Nations draft trusteeship agreements is being prepared for the UN general assembly's trusteeship committee by Soviet Russia, it was learned today.

The Soviet action, certain to have wide repercussions in the 51-nation committee, may get American approval—or acquiescence. But some members of the United States delegation were said to firmly oppose the Russian move.

They were represented as eager to fight it on the ground that Russia would be given too strong a voice in the future of Pacific islands wrested from Japan by American forces.

Meanwhile, Poland pushed for a showdown in the new UN drive to crush Generalissimo Francisco Franco's dictatorship. Polish foreign Minister Wincenty Rzymowski submitted to the assembly two draft resolutions calling for a general break in diplomatic relations with Franco and the barring of Spain from membership in any organizations related to the world organization.

Thus battle-flags were raised over two explosive issues as the assembly's big political and security committee gathered for its first meeting here today to consider a controversy-studded calendar of 11 items. They included not only the Franco issue, but the

SUMMER MAKES
BELATED STAND
IN THIS AREA

Summer staged a comeback Saturday in the Circleville area and the weatherman said the balmy temperatures would continue Saturday night with Sunday mostly cloudy followed by occasional rain and turning cooler by night.

The thermometer registered 66 degrees at 9 a. m. Saturday and the mercury had climbed to 70 by 10:30 a. m. As a consequence many residents discarded coats and cloaks. Some pondered the advisability of putting their heavier wraps back in the mothballs.

Saturday was the warmest Nov. 2 within the memory of many older residents of the community. However, came the warning from the weather forecaster that Old Man Winter is just around the corner waiting for an opportunity to make a sudden and chilly entry upon the weather stage.

LEWIS, KRUG ARE ABSENT

Leaders Miss First Session
Of Secret Negotiations
On Coal Problem

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Wildcat strikes pinched soft coal production today as government officials kept a cloak of secrecy around the status of their contract negotiations with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers (AFL).

Reports received by the solid fuels administration showed approximately 5,700 miners had struck yesterday because of misunderstandings over the status of their present contract.

SFA announced that soft coal production took another drop last week. Production this year through last Saturday is now seven per cent below the comparable period in 1945. Anthracite production, however is almost nine per cent higher.

With the negotiations in recess until Monday, there still was no official admission that the government had agreed to reopen the contract which has been in effect since the bituminous mines were seized last May.

Evidence, however, tended to confirm earlier reports that the administration was willing to reopen the contract. Lewis had said the agreement would be void if the government refused.

When invited to yesterday's meeting with federal mine administration officials, Lewis notified Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug that he took the invitation to mean the government was willing to reopen. Apparently neither Krug nor other officials told the union anything to cause Lewis to change his opinion.

Lewis had told Krug that the contract would remain in force during contract negotiations. The strikes yesterday were attributed to unrest over the status of the agreement.

The SFA reports showed 42 mines closed in Tennessee, Kentucky and West Virginia for that reason. However, the agency expected the men to be back at work Monday.

Neither Lewis nor Krug attended yesterday's sessions. Krug has been

JAPS ARE TOLD
THEIR FUTURE
IS UP TO THEM

TOKYO, Nov. 2—George Atcheson, Jr., American member of the Allied council for Japan, told the Japanese people today that the future of Japanese democracy, based on the new "no war" constitution, depends upon them and their leaders.

Atcheson issued a formal statement on the eve of promulgation of the new charter, in which the Japanese government renounces the right to make war. He outlined Japan's progress toward democracy under the occupation command by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"The Japanese people have learned that the past betrayed them and that their hopes lie in a new kind of future," he said. "The framework for democracy erected by the new constitution is the gateway to that future."

"In the final analysis, the Japanese people must make their own way along the road from defeat to democracy. The future democracy of Japan now rests squarely on the shoulders of the Japanese people and their leaders."

"Their achievements toward full success will be in the interests of the world at large as well as their own interests. I am confident the Japanese people may look hopefully to a democratic future."

CHINESE BANKS BUSY

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2—China's astronomical inflation was reflected today in Shanghai bank clearance reports for September showing a total figure of 5,285 billion Chinese dollars. The average daily clearance was $210,000,000,000.

FARLEY SAYS
DEMOCRATS DO NOT WANT REDS

MANILA, Nov. 2—James A. Farley, former postmaster general and one-time chairman of the Democratic national committee, said today he was thoroughly in accord with Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan's statement that the administration neither wants nor deserves the support of American Communists.

Farley declined to predict the outcome of next Tuesday's elections. He said he believed Secretary of State James F. Byrnes' foreign policy would be unaltered regardless of the results.

"I think it will be unchanged because it is a sound policy," he said.

on a western tour which was scheduled to end at Los Angeles next Wednesday. Lewis presumably did not attend because Krug was absent. It was doubted there would be any significant developments before both joined the conferences.

Krug was represented by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Warner Gardner and Navy Capt. N. H. Collisson, federal coal administrator. Lewis sent five UMW officials headed by Vice President John O'Leary.

None of the conferees would disclose what was discussed or explain the reason for the policy of secrecy.

During yesterday's sessions, the bituminous operators negotiating committee, which failed to reach an agreement with the union last Spring, issued a statement charging that the "politically minded men" in the administration had capitulated to Lewis.

PUBLIC WARNED AGAINST TIPS ON SURPLUSES

War Assets Administration today warned the public against being taken in by the advertising of sharpshooters who, with the aid of phony tipsters and questionable publications, are flim-flaming a small fortune from veterans, farmers, gas station operators and even more prosperous non-priority purchasers through the use of offering under cover access to non-existent or reserved surplus war property at below cost.

WAA supplemented this warning with the announcement that the cases of ten such publications are under investigation by the Department of Justice. Post Office Department and Federal Trade Commission. In each case the publication purported to show subscribers short-cuts to surplus property without abiding by established sales schedules, costs and procedures.

In issuing this warning, War Assets made it plain that there are legitimate publications operated outside War Assets which are performing a real service to their subscribers.

Russians Are Preparing New Trusteeship Plan

teeth" in the Soviet disarmament plan.

The Soviet proposals concerning the UN trusteeship program—the still-to-be achieved program for giving freedom and opportunity to the world's dependent peoples—were likely to emerge at the trusteeship committee's second meeting last Monday.

Poland's double-barreled plan for unseating Franco confronted the United States and Britain once more with the choice of abandoning their old argument that what they considered drastic action against Franco either would rally the Spanish people behind him or plunge Spain into a new civil war.

Before the political committee can pass the Polish resolutions—or any similar recommendations—on to the assembly for final action, the security council must drop the Spanish case from its agenda. This was expected to be done without a fight late Monday.

The trusteeship proposal readied by the Russians was disclosed to American officials at an extraordinary luncheon meeting between Soviet and U. S. delegation members Thursday, it was learned. At that time, the Russians disclosed frankly the interpretation they intended to place on an article in the UN charter covering trusteeship agreements. And the Americans indicated they would have to sound Washington on the U. S. attitude toward this interpretation.

Meanwhile the Nationalists issued a list of a second group of 200 national assembly delegates including Chiang, Madame Chiang, Madame Sun Yat-Sen, T. V. Soong and Dr. Sun. It was not clear whether Madame Sun, sister of Madame Chiang and known for her leftist leanings, would accept her selection. She is in Shanghai.

In the fighting zones the government officially announced the landing of troops near the Communist-held port of Chefoo on the north Shantung peninsula. Some Nationalist soldiers rushed into the city and street fighting was going on.

Other units, landed in amphibious operations, were closing in on the city and fighting in the suburbs. Landings were disclosed to have been made at three points.

Only a vanguard was inside the city proper, with the main force meeting stiff resistance from Communists. The Reds still were receiving reinforcements by sea routes from Manchuria, despite a government naval blockade.

ARABS STAGING GENERAL STRIKE IN HOLY LAND

JERUSALEM, Nov. 2—Arabs in Palestine, Syria and Lebanon held a 24-hour general strike today on the anniversary of the Balfour declaration of 1917, in which the British government promised to work for establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people.

Transportation service was halted after the strike began at sunrise. The day also is the Jewish Sabbath. Military and police armored cars were the only vehicles on the streets.

Hundreds gathered at mosques in the main Arab towns for prayers. W. N. Gray, British inspector general of police, reminded Arab organizations of a prohibition against unauthorized parades, demonstrations or wearing of uniforms.

Red-capped military police carrying shields and four-four truncheons patrolled the streets. Arabs and Jewish cafes, theaters and restaurants were closed.

Jews throughout Palestine will observe a general strike tomorrow protesting deportation of 1,300 refugees to Cyprus yesterday. Public meetings will be held in all principal towns and a large demonstration in Tel Aviv.

NEIGHBORS ASK FOR SHARE IN GERMAN TALKS

to undersecretary of State Dean Acheson.

Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands ambassador, issued a three nation statement announcing that the three nations were demanding a hand in decisions on Germany's future frontiers as well as her future political-economic status.

Loudon explained he and his colleagues were seeking quick action because the big four meeting here was imminent and that Germany's three small western neighbors wanted a hand in preventing a recurrence of German aggression from the start.

Loudon said nothing about the internal debate in the Netherlands over territorial demands against Germany. The Dutch parliament has been debating the subject in secret. The issue is not over whether to ask for border rectification. There is general Dutch agreement on that. But there are broad differences over how much to ask for—whether to limit it to "straightening" the frontier which would take into Holland less than 100,000 Germans or to take much more and create a German minority of several hundred thousands.

There was no immediate big four reaction to the Dutch-Belgian-Luxembourg charge. But there appeared to be confidence that the one certainty was that the Belgian-Dutch-Luxembourg demand would be countered with similar demands from Germany's smaller eastern neighbors—Poland and Czechoslovakia, possibly Yugoslavia because of her frontier with Austria, and also Denmark because of Schleswig-Holstein.

ATOM ENGINEER SAYS NATIONS CAN MAKE BOMBS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—A. C. Klein, who headed an engineering group that laid the groundwork for the atom bomb project, said today any nation in the world can produce an atom bomb within 10 years.

In an article in "Army Ordnance" magazine, he said all the nations of the world have access to the scientific knowledge underlying production of fissionable materials.

"In addition," Klein said, "those nations which cooperated with us in the production of the bomb assembly have also had access to the production methods and engineering designs which have developed during the last four years."

He said these friendly nations could probably produce a bomb within five years, "while other nations could do so in about 10 years."

OEA recently hired an advertising agency to plug its case for higher teachers salaries.

B. A. Stevens, OEA assistant secretary for research, said he hoped the publicity campaign would impress upon the members of the state legislature the need for increasing the state's aid to schools.

"That's the only way we will get higher salaries for our teachers that mean anything," he said.

a diplomatic protest to Albania and received a reply which the British rejected as unacceptable.

The Corfu strait, only one mile wide at its narrowest point, adjoins the Greek-Albanian border, which has been under dispute between the two governments. The British admiral announced last week that the channel had been used by warships and merchant vessels for nearly two years after being swept for wartime mines.

(The Albanian government protested to the United Nations that the two damaged British destroyers had invaded Albanian waters "without the authorization of the government of Albania" in what was called a flagrant violation of Albania's integrity.)

The Leander, a 15-year-old warship, carries a normal complement of 550 men. It mounts eight 6-inch guns.

COUNSEL READY FINAL PLEAS IN WAR BRIDE TRIAL

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 2—Opposing counsel prepared final arguments today in the murder trial of Bridget Waters, Irish war bride charged with shooting to death her estranged American husband.

The case will go to the jury today after instructions from district Judge A. S. Henderson, who ruled that the 26-year-old nurse's guilt or innocence must be decided on her plea of self-defense.

"There is not a scintilla of evidence" to show she was insane at the time of the Labor Day shooting of Frank K. Waters Sr., 38, Henderson said, but he admitted testimony on her mental and emotional condition on grounds it was necessary in proving self-defense.

FRANCE EMERGES
FRANCE'S politics, always difficult for Americans to comprehend, seem complicated by divided French sentiments on the recent vote that gave the country a new constitution. Supported by a coalition of the three major political parties, namely the Catholic Popular Republicans, the Communists and the Socialists, the measure won by a bare million and a quarter majority, a third of what its proponents hoped for. Opposition by De Gaulle apparently reduced the affirmative balloting, causing many to stay away from the polls.
Two results are clear from this important election by a major European power emerging from war: De Gaulle, though unsuccessful in his fight against the constitution, continues to be a strong influence, a vigorous leader-of-the-opposition; secondly, despite divergent views of its citizenry, France has attained national unity and is marching forward from its chaotic provisional status to a permanent government.
A second election, Nov. 10, will now make possible the selection of a parliament, a working national assembly and a president. Mutilated France has recovered enough from Nazi menace to steady her ship of state and take her place among the family of great nations.

EXAMPLES FOR STUDENTS
STARVING university students in Europe are being relieved by Harvard undergraduates, who have had their dining rooms put on voluntary rationing to buy food for their needy brethren abroad. In the first week $500 was saved in this way, and sent to the University of Paris. Later donations will benefit students at the Universities of Prague, Grenoble and Vienna.
This philanthropy is not patented. Students of any college may follow this example with advantage to themselves as well as to their fellow-students overseas. Plain living and high thinking always was a good ideal for students—and other people.

MILLIONS OF LEARNERS
THE nation's colleges have a two million enrollment, of which 800,000 are veterans. This is an all high record that crowds classrooms, laboratories and dormitories everywhere to the utmost. It is an increase ranging from 40 per cent in some institutions to as much as 279 per cent in others.
This is encouraging. It's a tough world that is rolling about in the cosmos, and young people will need all the knowledge and training they can muster to survive in it. They seem to know this and are bent on being prepared.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:
Up to a heavily overcast morning, but by mid-day the sun broke through. That rain was good for everything, including our cistern. Had heard the womenfolk discussing rationing, and I was fearful. Need for that passed even as Washington announced the closing of practically all the ration offices. Even the big-wigs must have got to wondering what all those hundreds of thousands of small-time autocrats were doing.
Elimination of controls certainly does not mean an immediate easing of shortages. Without any doubt prices of all legitimate merchandise will be higher for a time at least. In the meantime the black market will be here. One woman told me of needing some plywood to complete a cabinet in her kitchen and being quoted a black market price of something more than $140. She wisely refused to buy, and the other day made a purchase through legitimate channels. The price was $34 and a few cents. Such a saving as that was worth waiting for.
Some political chat on the streets. Republicans, generally, are wearing wide smiles of optimism. And with reason, too, I think. But if they only knew it all the votes their candidates receive will not be from persons voting for them. A tremendous number will be from persons who are not voting for a single thing, but are really voting "against." As an indication of what may be expected in Pickaway county—the Democratic leaders are doing little. Of course, the Republicans are doing very little, but the sun is shining on them and their need for activity is not so great.

Yes, these are strange times. Did see a line waiting at a dentist's office. Imagine that! And me with a molar exhibiting a hole that feels to my tongue to be about the size of the Grand Canyon. Refuse to walk past a dentist's office or more than nod to one of the jerkers for fear he will discover the secret. (If any dentist reads this I hope he understands I am not seeking an appointment, am just repeating rumor.)
Received a card from Cecil Noecker challenging me to a rifle match. That damn Yankee read and believed what I said

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—One eminent Democratic campaign contributor concedes privately the Republicans should run away with the house and perhaps even make the senate tag along slightly Tuesday. He also predicts Gov. Dewey will run so strong in New York that the Democratic senate seat there will be swept surprisingly from the grasp of Lehman.
A left-leaning Truman official similarly made a bet about two weeks before election at even money that the Republicans would not gain a majority of 18 seats in the house—thereby unwittingly conceding he expected them to get about 17.
A close Truman sympathizer made a bet at 3 to 1 that the Republicans would not get control of the senate, although he would not hazard any personal funds that his administration would hold the house.
But all this is not startling news to you, if you read this column October 11 saying the Republicans might gain more than they had been claiming, pointing out there was a split in the union backing of the administration, and concluding with these words: "My election prediction is this:—The Republicans will gain firm control of the house perhaps by 16 or 17 votes, or more, and will come close to controlling the senate, perhaps within one or two votes. If the split among the unions eventuates at the polls, the scope of victory will be enlarged to the same extent as the split widens."
All this was written before any polls were published or the ensuing investigations of political reporters around the country averaged up to about the same conclusion you read here first. Republicans then were timidly awaiting the Gallup poll, which said last week Republicans held 56 percent of the national vote. Any Republicans who were waiting for this will have to wait longer. It is indefinite to the point of worthlessness. No one is running nationally this year, so the national popularity affords no detectable suspicion of how many seats the Republicans will gain or in what districts. It is too little too late, and merely broadly confirms better detailed prognostications offered by nearly every other authority earlier.
The knowing politicians do confess among themselves that some pro-Democratic reaction set in after Mr. Truman belatedly relaxed OPA controls—although they do not know how much. The Gallup poll says the gain was only 1 percent nationally, which might or might not affect some close districts, presumably not.
These accumulations of evidence have caused the administration politicians to assume their defeatist attitude. Fingers are already being pointed around in various directions. The scalp of Democratic National Chairman Hannegan is being pointed to again. Although the call is feeble so far, it will swell into a roar if the expected happens Tuesday. Many southern Demos think Hannegan played too closely with CIO, while most Demo-congressmen will tell you the CIO ran itself out earlier and lacked the influence Hannegan expected. Others blame Mr. Truman's woeful muddling of the price-wage policies since he first astonishingly vetoed the congressional OPA bill last June. Still others contend he did not get the meat out soon

DIET AND HEALTH

New Treatment of Arthritis
By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
CHRONIC arthritis or inflammation of the joints is a widespread, painful, and sometimes crippling disease. It is also something of a mystery, for, though its effects are well-known, its exact cause has never been determined.
As always, in such cases, treatment has been more or less on a trial-and-error basis, and doctors are continually on the lookout for new and better methods of relieving their patients, with the result that arthritis has been treated with everything from gold salts to cobra venom.
It is not surprising then, that during the last few years since vitamins have taken their place in the scientific limelight, they should have been tried for this disabling affliction.
In a recent survey of the subject, Dr. Cornelius H. Traeger of New York, declares that only one vitamin has been of value in treating arthritic patients, but that one is very beneficial.
He says that vitamin A has no place in the treatment of arthritis. Patients have been given large doses of it without any appreciable effect on either the severity or the course of the disease.
Vitamin B-complex also has been tried and it was found that none of the patients was benefited insofar as his arthritic symptoms were concerned by the use of this preparation, or any of the vitamins which make it up, such as vitamin B-1, niacin, or riboflavin.
Thus it would seem that, of all the vitamins, the only one which appears to have any definite effect on arthritis is vitamin D, or electrically-activated vaporized sterol. The other vitamins can only be expected to help if the patient has definite evidences of vitamin deficiency.
The same thing seems to be true where vitamin C is concerned. This does not mean however, that if a patient with arthritis is suffering from definite symptoms indicating a vitamin deficiency, the proper vitamin preparations should not be taken under the directions of the physician.
Dr. Traeger has found that large doses of vitamin D, called electrically-activated vaporized sterol, have proved most helpful in the treatment of arthritis. He has not only given the preparation by mouth, but also by injection into a muscle. With the latter form of treatment no reactions occurred, such as headache or stomach upsets. At present, he is using both forms of treatment together, and finds that this is safe and causes no upsetting reaction.
Conclusive Experiment
As a result of the treatment of over 500 patients with chronic arthritis, over a period of eight years, he has come to the conclusion that vitamin D in the form mentioned is beneficial. Should any slight upsets occur as a result of its use, these may be relieved by reducing the dose or discontinuing the treatment for a time.
Easy for us, she thought, to tell them, we who know nothing of warped places in tired minds and of hurt, incapacitated bodies. Easy for us who do not know . . . who we are not there.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN
LYDIA HAD come in on the train to New York that morning to shop, and later to call on Theo and Kirby. Theo had called, asking her to come at three-thirty if she wanted to see the baby. And her feelings were a mingling of excitement at finding herself, the small town girl, on Fifth Avenue (she and Betty had come up twice for week-ends since they had been in the east) and of a sharp curiosity to see Theo and Kirby again. Yet at the center of her mind with all other thoughts springing from it was the thought of Chris, who had left four days ago, who had left a soldier, who would return a civilian once more.
Standing at a counter where a salesgirl was showing her linens, she looked suddenly transfixed. Was Chris at this moment removing the uniform he had worn for three years? He would fold it carefully and look at it, his face taut, and then slowly reach for the brown tweeds she had packed for him. And he, being he, would always feel a hunger that would never know its gratification, the hunger of a job he had left undone. And even though the war was over and he was technically free, he would still think of those men, his men, who had died in alien places. . . . That's the man who will be coming back to you in brown tweeds, Lydia. A man with a hunger, with memories you will never share and a shocked and weary mind.
"Here's a luncheon set that's colorful," the salesgirl said. Lydia looked at her.
"Yes. Oh, yes. This is what I want."
Colors. . . . Because the colors of war are very dull.
She picked up her parcels and went into the cold December sun. Because she did not know where the place was that Theo lived she decided to walk a little before taking a taxi.
In the cerise-colored coat and a little hat with a brim made of the same material as her coat (Betty had finally sent her clothes) she thought not of shop windows or the passing parade or the price of her tickets as she had on her two previous visits here, but of preparing herself to meet Kirby and Theo again. It was difficult not to think of Chris constantly and to wonder how long it would be before he found his way back to the work that he had loved. Find his way. . . . How true, she thought. In the inferno of D Day and during those 40 days in the line which he had described to her in clipped sentences one afternoon in the sun in Georgia, his mind had lost its cohesiveness as his leg had its complete use possibly forever. And until his mind found its cohesiveness and until he could go into court master in the art of forgetting his impediment, he would be as one who had lost his way.
Easy for us, she thought, to tell them, we who know nothing of warped places in tired minds and of hurt, incapacitated bodies. Easy for us who do not know . . . who we are not there.

would prove hazardous to cherished objectives. Excesses, waste, and indulgence in funds, energies, words and deeds, might exact severe penalties.
Those whose birthday it is may prepare to adopt a shrewd, reasonable, balanced and generous course of action, in the face of proper appreciation and support or with definite provocations, aggravating and exciting. Indulgence in immoderation, impulsive comebacks and excesses and extravagance in words and deeds might jeopardize reasonable prospects. Sound judgment and good will should win out against false and difficult circumstances.
A child born on this day, while having good prospects for success and happiness in life, may have to fight for its cherished hopes and wishes. It may be shrewd and sagacious in such attainment.

For Bride-Elect

Mrs. Elliott K. Barnhill and Mrs. Frank Barnhill, Jr., entertained at the Elliott Barnhill home on North Scioto street Friday evening with a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Martha Jane Paul, bride-elect of Buford Newton Daniels.

For the occasion the entire dining room table was covered by a miniature wedding scene. The little bride and groom, the flower girl and bridesmaids were leaving the church through a garden of flowers.

The evening was spent in dressing miniature brides and grooms. Mrs. Dudley Carpenter received first prize for the best dressed doll.

After Miss Paul opened her gifts refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Guests for the evening were Mrs. Arvin Leist, Mrs. Dudley Carpenter, Mrs. Frank Barnhill, Sr., Mrs. Leslie Pontius, Mrs. V. D. Kerns, Mrs. Harley Colwell, Mrs. Bert Shimp, Mrs. Jack Clifton, Mrs. David Glick, Mrs. Edward Ebert, Mrs. Frank Wanta, Mrs. Emmett Barnhart, Miss Ella Crum, Miss Mattie Crum, Miss Marvane Howard, Miss Regina Thornton, and the honored guest.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Alvin Sprayberry and Mrs. R. R. Douglas, Macon, Ga.

MISS LOCKARD IS BRIDE OF HOWARD EITEL

Mr. and Mrs. George Lockard, Williamsport, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ethel Jean, to Howard E. Eitel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eitel, route 2. The double ring ceremony was performed Friday, in the home of the Rev. George Troutman, East Mount street.

Miss Jean Eitel, sister of the groom, served as the maid of honor. Paul Eitel, cousin of the groom, acted as best man.

For her marriage the bride wore gray striped suit with cherry cote accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mr. Eitel's gift to his bride was a double strand of pearls and matching ear clips.

Parents of both the bride and groom attended the ceremony.

The bride attended Salt Creek high school and is now employed by the Bell Vernon Seal Test company. Mr. Eitel is a graduate of Jackson high school and is associated with the Kroger Baking company, Columbus.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Eitel will make their home at 1360 Wilson Avenue, Columbus.

Christ Lutheran Organizations Hold Combined Meeting

A combined meeting of Christ's Lutheran Ladies society and Luther League was held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barthelmas, North Scioto street. Thirty members and guests enjoyed a cooperative supper which preceded the meeting.

The Rev. George Troutman had charge of the devotion. The topic subject was, "Christ For the Japanese - Americans." During the business session, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Troutman, final plans were made for the first Sunday observance of the 50th anniversary of Trinity Lutheran church. The anniversary will be observed throughout the month of November.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel, Jackson township, will be hosts for the December meeting. A Christmas party is planned for this session and gifts will be exchanged.

MEN AND BOYS PROGRAMS SET AT U. B. CHURCH

In cooperation with a denominational emphasis, the men and boys of the First United Brethren church will receive recognition in a two day observance, November 3 and 4.

Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, a Men's Day program has been arranged by the committee. Presiding at the morning worship will be Ray Johnson, president of the Harper Bible class. The responsive scripture reading will be led by Montford Kirkwood, Jr., representing the returned service men. C. B. Wilkins, president of the Men's Bible class, will offer the morning prayer. Ross Kirkpatrick, vice-president of the church trustee board, will direct the presentation of the title and offering and give the dedicatory prayer. A male quartet, consisting of Charles and Ross Kirkpatrick and Montford Kirkwood, Senior and Junior, will sing. The guest speaker, Dr. J. F. Smith, department of speech, Otterbein College, will deliver an address on the theme: "Christian Men". Ray Johnson will pronounce the benediction. Ushers from the Youth Sunday School class will be James Starkey, Frank Moats, Jr., Robert Huffer and Donald Woodward.

The local Hi-Y organization and the various Boy Scout troops of the community will attend the service.

At 6 p. m., at the Youth Fellowship meeting at the church, Mrs. Carl L. Wilson, youth director, will give special emphasis to the young men and their responsibility to the church program. Twenty-five young men are expected to attend this service.

Monday night at 7 o'clock at the Church community house, the men and boys will continue their festivities by enjoying a roast turkey dinner with a program of music, humorous readings, sports films, short speeches and a closing devotion. Because of the limited banquet facilities of the community house about 100 men and boys will attend.

In announcing these special meetings, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor, says, "The men and boys' gatherings have a definite purpose of creating better understanding between the boys and men of the community, thus lending towards a more wholesome fellowship, which seems most needed in our present social order. Thus all men and boys who do not attend church elsewhere are invited to come to these services."

MINISTERS TO MEET HERE AT 10 A. M. MONDAY
Pickaway County Ministerial Association members will meet at 10 a. m. Monday in St. Philip's Episcopal church.

Devotions will be in charge of the Rev. Leonard W. Mann, Kingstown. The address will be given by the Rev. Clarence Swearingen, First Methodist church.

The Rev. L. C. Shurburne is chairman of the committee in charge of the meeting.

THE MAN JOHN WESLEY'S SUNDAY SERMON TOPIC

The pastor of the First Methodist church, the Rev. Clarence Swearingen, will use for his sermon topic Sunday morning the second of his series "The Man John Wesley."

The choir will sing "O for a Closer Walk With God" by Anderson. Mrs. Harold Deffenbaugh will direct and Carl C. Palm will be at the organ console.

ANNIVERSARY OF CHRIST CHURCH TO BE OBSERVED

Christ Lutheran church, located seven miles west of Circleville on Route 56, will celebrate throughout the month of November the 50th anniversary of the dedication of the present church. Four special services have been arranged, one for each Sunday in the month.

This Sunday, November 3, at 2:30 p. m., the first of the golden anniversary services has been designated as "Church Organization Sunday". The Rev. George L. Troutman, pastor, will deliver the sermon taking as his theme, "Fifty Years by God's Grace". The church choir, under the direction of Mrs. Harry Kern, will render the anthem. Special instrumental music will be presented by the Sunday School orchestra of Trinity Lutheran church.

Mrs. Lyle Davis will give the history of the ladies missionary society. Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel will present the history of the youth organization of the church, the Luther League. Miss Helen Margaret Kern will read the 50 year history of the Sunday School.

Sunday, November 10, an evening service, designated as "Community Night", will be held. Invitation is being extended to all families of the community to attend this service. Dr. James Schilling, president of the Ohio district of the American Lutheran church, will be the anniversary speaker on community night.

Sunday evening, November 17, is Circleville parish service. Members of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church are invited to attend. The guest speaker for this third anniversary service is the Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff, St. Paul's Lutheran church, Asheville route 1.

Final of the golden anniversary services will be held Sunday afternoon, November 24. This will be the Homecoming service and is set for 3 p. m. Dr. R. E. Golladay, pastor of Grace Lutheran church, Columbus, will be the speaker.

The congregation has designated all anniversary gifts and offerings for a special building project. The anniversary project is to excavate under the present church and equip a basement for Sunday School and social purposes.

The public is invited to attend any or all of these golden anniversary services.

PROMOTION DAY PLANNED BY U. B. CHURCH SCHOOL

Continuing the Fall rally emphasis, Promotion Day will be observed at the First United Brethren Church, East Main street, Sunday at 9:15 A. M., when the Church School meets for worship and Bible study.

Ray Johnson, assistant superintendent, will preside at the opening exercise. After the lesson study, the school will assemble in the sanctuary, where the promotion ceremony will be conducted.

Since most of the pupils eligible for promotion are in the children's department, Miss Gladys Noggle, children's director, will address the school on the topic, "Why Promotion Day?" Following this explanation, the teachers will present their pupils for promotion and formally introduce them to their new teacher, who will extend a welcome.

Mrs. Robert Dick, Miss Betty Jane May, Mrs. Montford Kirkwood, Jr., Mrs. Ruby Brown, Mrs. Porter Martin, John Kerns, Mrs. Carl L. Wilson and Miss Lucille Kirkwood are teachers participating in the promotion ceremony.

Paul Champions Freedom

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 3 is Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 5:13-18, the Memory Verse being Galatians 5:13, "Through love be servants one to another.")

IN LAST week's lesson we found Paul preaching Christ to the Gentiles, when disbelieving Jews refused to accept the gospel. In this one we see how he championed the cause of the Gentiles, and won his point. An eminent churchman has called this 15th chapter of Acts the "Magna Charta of the Christian church."

The chapter starts by telling of "certain men" who came to Antioch, where Paul and Barnabas had such great success in preaching to those not of Jewish blood, and insisting that unless the new converts would allow themselves to obey the old Jewish rite of circumcision, they could not belong to the church, or be saved. This rite differentiated the Jews from all other peoples, and these men felt it was necessary for all who joined the church to obey the Old Testament mandate.

This was a serious matter and the first dissension in the young church. Paul and Barnabas had converted many Gentiles and they felt it was not necessary for them to virtually become Jews to be saved.

It was a matter for the elders at Jerusalem to decide, so it was agreed that Paul and Barnabas should go at once to Jerusalem to lay the matter and their arguments before the church fathers, for there could not be two denominations, one Jewish, the other Gentile. The Apostles, the Twelve, were members of the church at Jerusalem, and it was only fair that the dispute be submitted to them and to see if they would uphold Paul and Barnabas or the others. Others from the other side of the dispute went also. Passing through Phoenicia and Samaria, the two continued, "declaring the conversion of the Gentiles; and they caused great joy unto all the brethren."

Church Received Them
Arrived in Jerusalem, "they were received of the church, and of the apostles and elders, and they declared all things that God had done with them."

Certain of the Pharisees who believed presented their case, and the apostles and elders gathered to consider the matter. Peter upheld Paul and Barnabas, saying that God had decided that the Gentiles should hear the gospel, and "God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as He did unto us; And put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith."

The multitude kept silence after this and called upon Paul and Barnabas, who declared "what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them."

When they had finished James spoke, declaring that God "did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for His name." He concluded his remarks by declaring, "Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God: But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood."

After this "pleased it the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas, namely Judas, surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren."

They wrote letters, as James had suggested, telling the Gentiles, "Forasmuch as we have heard that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law; unto whom we gave no such commandment:

"It seemed good to us, being assembled with an accord, to send chosen men unto you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by mouth."

Then they stated the rules that they had all agreed upon as necessary for Gentiles to obey as well as Jews, and which have been mentioned before in this lesson. "For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things."

The four were then dismissed and proceeded to Antioch, where they gathered many together, presented and read the letter, and there was great rejoicing.

Judas and Silas, being prophets also, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them. After they had tarried awhile Judas went away, but Silas stayed with Paul and Barnabas, who, having won their point and saved the church from division, "continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also."

TURF MEN AGREE ASSAULT BACK IN WINNING FORM

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2—Veteran turfmen, impressed by Assault's flashy victory in the invitation Pimlico special, agreed today that the gimpy Texas horse has regained the top-notch racing form which won him the triple crown last Spring.

Assault had all his old brilliance as he ran over the same mile-and-three-sixteenths course he toured in taking the Preakness in four-and-two-fifths seconds faster time. Clocking in 1:57 flat, Assault finished six lengths in front of the late-running Stymlie, with Bridal Flower third and Turbine fourth and last.

Four gases make up natural gas: methane, ethane, propane and butane.

enough, that he gave in too easily to labor, that his Wallace faction was a joke, etc., etc.

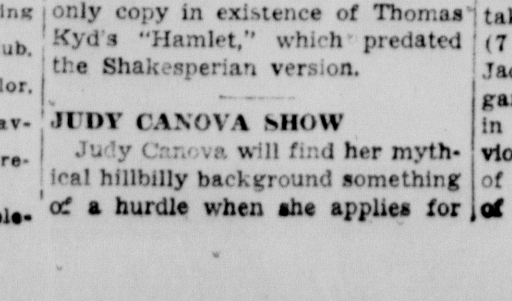

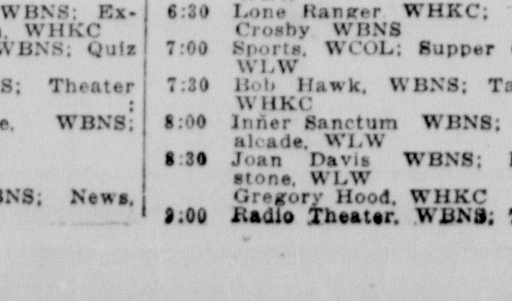

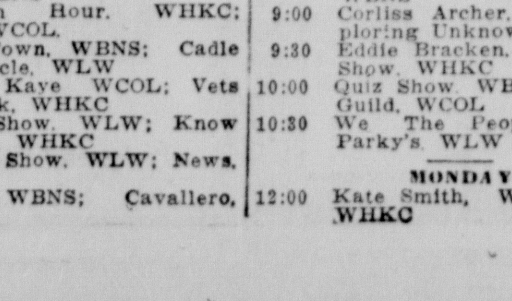

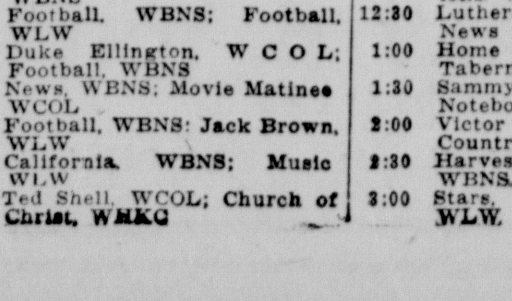

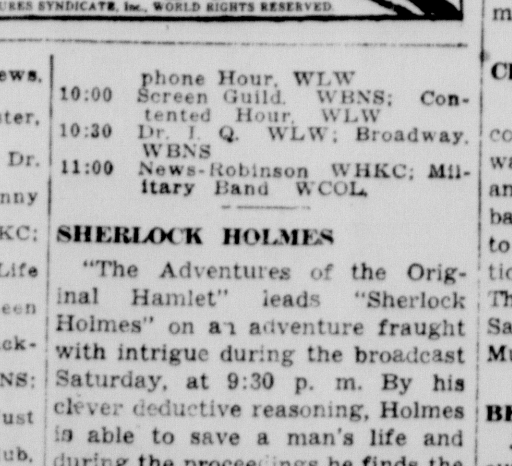

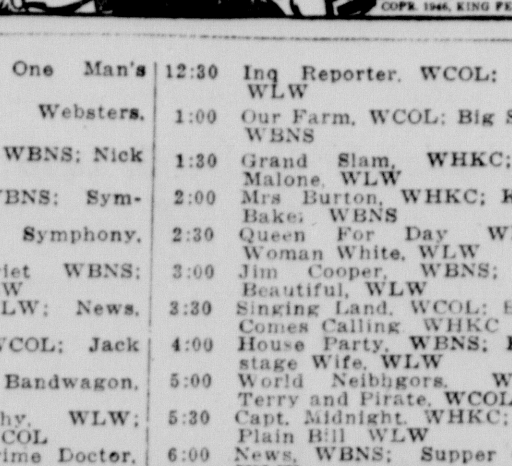

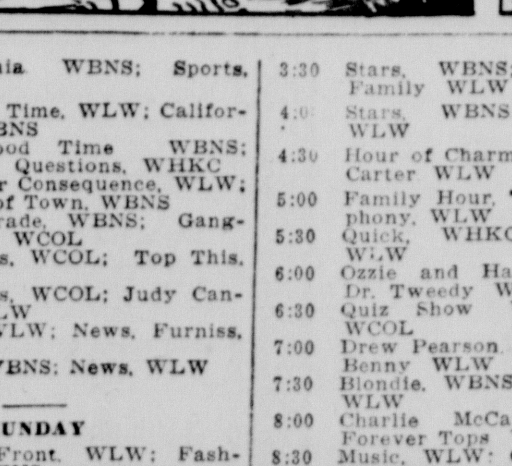

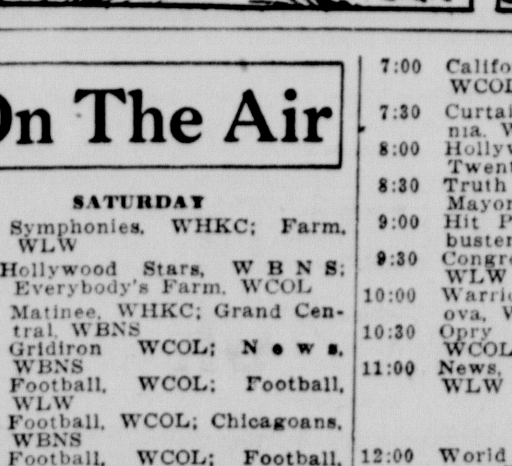

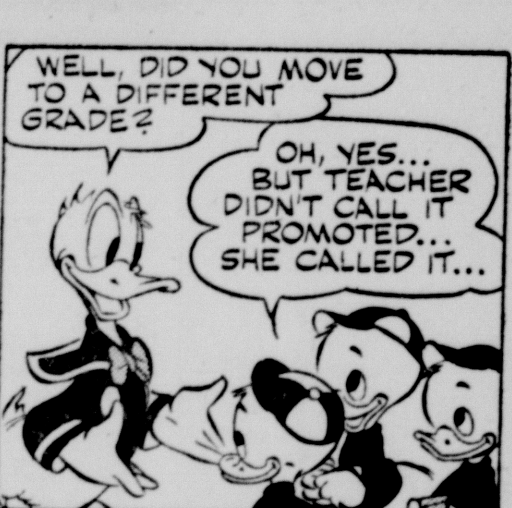

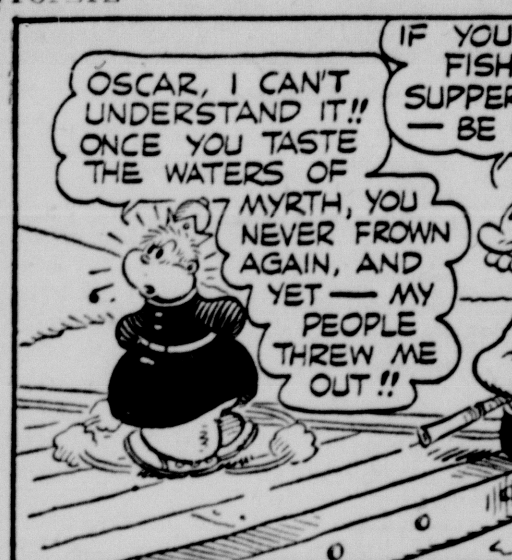

The truth is far more penetrating. Not even a popular leader could have avoided suffering this defeatism in his party in this election. It is not due to any of the personalities or reasons suggested but to the deeper basic cause of disunity in the party and in the movement. Truman stood for CIO economic policies (spending, unemployment compensation, OPA, no strike curbs, etc.). Congress did not. These policies proved unpopular as soon as the war ended. Indeed his Democratic congress took the opposite stand on nearly every issue, trying to make itself more popular in the face of White House vetoes and threats. This split eventually reached down deeply into the unions, as well as the party, where it was finally realized the policies were unrealistic and contrary to public aspirations.

Truman and Hannegan tried to ride two horses going in opposite directions, with the usual results.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

STRONG ENOUGH TO PASS. "STRONG ENOUGH TO PASS" sounds like an adoxical language. It is not, however. In fact, it applies emphatically to many a hand on which an average player makes an opening pre-emptive bid of three or four in a major, or three, four or five in a minor. Practically every first-ranker in the country now reserves those bids for hands which are worthless if set down as a dummy at any other contract. If the hand with a long suit is of any value whatsoever at No Trumps, or on the defense, the fine player finds it "strong enough to pass," with the idea of coming in later.

West North East South
4♥ Pass 5♥

Properly fearing a lead from his side honors, North opened a trump against that contract, and it was set two tricks, with the loss of a couple of tricks apiece in spades and diamonds. West remonstrated with East for his raise that got the side set one trick more than necessary.

West, though, was the real culprit. To begin with, he did not have enough playing tricks to be within two of the number required by his 4-Hearts bid when vulnerable. Secondly, and more important, he did not have a hand which was worthless on defense, as his A would have been good for a trick. Third, he did not have a hand which was worthless at No Trumps, but one probably worth seven tricks to his partner. He was, in other words, "strong enough to pass," then bid later.

If West had passed, East should have opened with 1-Diamond, whereupon West should have called 2-Hearts, East 2-No Trumps, West 3-Hearts and East 3-No Trumps. At this contract, nine tricks would have been absolutely sure—same number as at hearts—no matter what suit the defenders opened.

Your Week-End Question

Why is a small card from a suit headed by the ace usually considered the worst of all leads against a trump contract?

be tactful and have great understanding to make your home a happy one. Brilliant inspiration will be yours today, so use it. Radiant imagination stirs your mind. Highly stimulating rays give you a realistically energetic outlook. Set your aims high. Volunteer to help at a party or gathering of some sort.

Hints on Etiquette

When answering a formal invitation, be sure your reply includes the date and time of the affair exactly as the invitation stated.

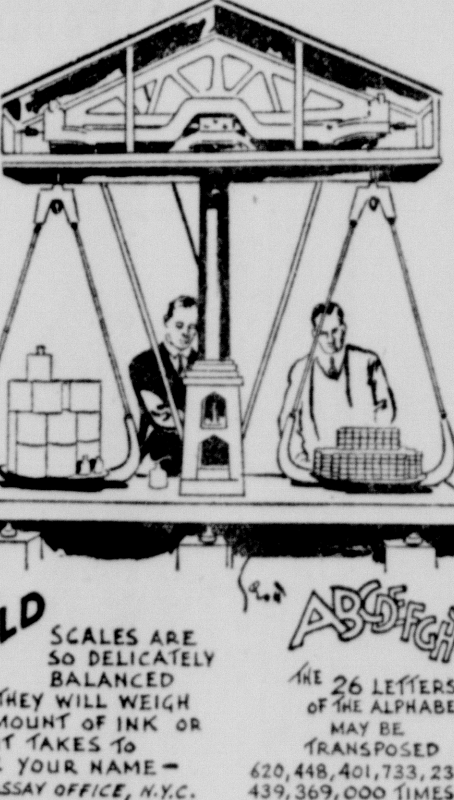

Horoscope for Sunday

You are impulsive and subject to moods, if this is the anniversary of your birth. You love travel and change of scene, and can readily adapt yourself to any environment. You are generous and kind. It gives you a great deal of real pleasure to help others. Today hopes may be restricted by external circumstances. Make your pace for the day slow and steady. The moon enters Pisces at 3:29 p. m. Romance and emotional situations are at low ebb. A slightly stimulating aspect will prevail around 9 p. m. Perform duties then. Be careful about what you say or write.

Local Election Interest Centers In School Fund Voting

EIGHT LEVIES, ONE BOND ISSUE TO BE VOTED ON

Funds For Regular Operating Expenses Asked In City, County Districts

Interest of Circleville and Pickaway county citizens who will vote next Tuesday appears focused chiefly on eight proposed special school tax levies and one proposed school bond issue.

The 40 polling places in the city and county will be open from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

The individual ballots pertaining to the special school tax levies and the school bond issue are of the "for or against" type.

Voters in the Saltcreek local school district will decide the fate of a proposed $79,200 bond issue for constructing and improving a fireproof school building. It provides a tax levy outside of the 10-mill limitation estimated to average 20 cents for each $100 of valuation for a maximum period of 24 years to pay the bond principal and interest.

Jackson township rural school district voters will ballot on a special tax levy for schools, not to exceed 20 cents for each $100 of valuation over a three-year period.

Monroe township rural school district voters will ballot on a special tax levy for schools, not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation over a five-year period.

Citizens of the Ashville village school district will decide a proposed special tax levy for schools, not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation over a five-year period.

Voters of Deercreek township rural school district will ballot on a special school tax levy, not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation over a three-year period.

Tarleton rural school district voters will decide a special school tax levy, not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation over a five-year period.

Stars Stage Battle

A FIGHT TO THE FINISH is waged (above) by Gary Cooper and Marc Lawrence in a tense moment from "Cloak and Dagger," which arrives at the Grand theatre Sunday for three days. The film, a powerful drama of romance and adventure, also features Robert Alda and introduces Lilli Palmer, famous European actress, to the American screen.

school district will decide the fate of a school tax levy, not to exceed 20 cents for each $100 of valuation over a five-year period.

Washington township rural school district voters will decide a school tax levy, not to exceed 40 cents for each $100 of valuation over a three-year period.

The board of education of the Circleville city school district will issue a letter Monday to all Circleville voters urging passage of the proposed levy. Following is a copy of the letter:

"Dear Voters of Circleville: When you go to the polls tomorrow, you will be handed a ballot similar to the sample ballot on the reverse side of this letter.

"This ballot covers the proposed two-mill levy for the Circleville City Schools. This levy furnishes a part of the funds necessary to the every-day operation of our school. Without this levy, it would not be possible to continue to operate our schools efficiently.

"This levy is not a new one. It does not create any new or additional tax. It is simply a renewal of a levy already in force.

"May we, therefore, ask you to give this matter your earnest consideration? Mark your ballot as shown on the reverse side of this letter. Protect the future of our children by providing adequate funds for the operation of our schools.

"Vote Yes on the two-mill levy! Very sincerely yours, (Signed) Board of Education Circleville City School District
